LINER SINKS FREIGHTER, 23 SAVED

900 ABOARD LUXURY SHIP UNHURT

In the black of the night, hemmed in by heavy fog, the palatial Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Atholl crashed into the Danish freighter Maine, 175 miles southeast of Boston, it was disclosed today.

Terse radio messages, flashed from the Canadian ship, told that the liner's steel prow had ripped a gaping 40-foot hole in the freighter's hull, that the Danish craft had sunk, but that its 23 officers and seamen had been saved.

Nine hundred passengers were aboard the Duchess of Atholl, bound for Montreal from New York.

Interview in Jail Stirs Fund Quiz

Disclosure that an engineering expert hired by the city law department had interviewed William J. Driscoll, president of the Codman Hill Construction Company, at Charles street jail, caused a stir today at the Finance Commission hearing.

George R. Farnum, counsel for the commission, in its investigation of reports Driscoll was a favored contractor, pointed out that Driscoll had refused to talk to an engineer hired by the Finance Commission.

The Codman Hill president, on the other hand, apparently talked freely to Armand Benoit, an expert hired by the law department whose statement read today contradicted the commission's expert.

Benoit's statement declared the work done by the Codman Hill concern on property owned by the White Fund was of good quality and that the cost was not excessive.

SCORES STATEMENT

When Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph P. Brennan finished reading Benoit's statement Farnum declared:

"This statement is a tissue of hearsay. If I had known we were only going to get an argument based on statements of William

Spanish Reds Enlist Boston WPA Workers

Recruits for the Spanish Red forces have been enlisted from the ranks of Works Progress Administration employes and are still being enlisted from this group, it was disclosed here today.

The disclosure came from headquarters of the Communist Party in Boston, as it cited seven former WPA employes on the Communist "roll of honor."

The Communists had no hesitancy in boasting that their recruiting officers were also among those who were drawing salaries from the U. S. government.

On the "honor roll" for serving the Spanish loyalist cause were the three Flaherty brothers of Boylston street, Back Bay.

Francis P. Flaherty, one time employe of the WPA writers'

GEHRIG HITS PUT YANKS OUT FRONT

By JOE CASHMAN

Fenway Park, Aug. 12—After the Yankees had knocked Johnny Marcum out of the box, the Red Sox came back to score three runs in the third on Pinky Higgins' double and then proceeded to kayo Monte Pearson in the fourth inning.

Only around 25,000 turned out for the first game of the second double bill.

The gates were opened at 9 o'clock but, in marked contrast to the milling thousands who stormed the portals for the mid-week show, there weren't a baker's dozen waiting to pass through them on this occasion.

And where the park was packed at noon yesterday, there weren't 5000 on hand today.

All the box and reserved seats had been sold, though, and there was a generous sprinkling of customers in the unreserved grandstand section.

So despite the wide open spaces in the bleachers and pavilion, the Yanks were sure to be paid off on close to 25,000 admissions, whether

SENATE BARS QUICK O. K. OF BLACK

Washington, Aug. 12 (INS) — Senator Hugo Black (D.) of Alabama, one of the younger members of the Senate, and noted as a liberal, was today nominated by President Roosevelt to fill the vacancy on the United States Supreme Court bench.

The Senate immediately blocked routine confirmation of the appointment, and referred it to the judiciary committee for study.

Black is named to succeed Justice Willis Van Devanter, who retired at the conclusion of the recent session of the court, June 12.

The nomination came as a stunning surprise to his colleagues in the Senate. There was no previous intimation of the President even considering him.

There had been talk that the President was considering several other senators. Friends of Senator Logan (D.) of Kentucky and Senator Bone (D.) of Washington had urged their appointment.

Black was 51 years old on February 27. He was born in Clay County, Alabama, attended public school at Ashland and was graduated with his law degree from the University of Alabama in 1906.

The appointment of Black was announced to the Senate by a read-

Marines Arm For Shanghai Battle Crisis

BULLETIN

Tokyo, Aug. 12 (INS)—Presence of Chinese in the demilitarized zone of Shanghai renders hostilities "inevitable," a spokesman for the navy ministry declared tonight after an emergency cabinet session at the home of Premier Konoye. China is "positively preparing for war," the spokesman said, and hostilities involving the international settlement "cannot be avoided."

Shanghai, Aug. 12 (AP)—Ranks of Japanese bluejackets moved into battle position in Shanghai to face an unstemmed torrent of Chinese regulars tonight, and the garrisons of the United States and three other nations mobilized "for the worst."

A "peace" conference intended to ease the crisis in the panic-stricken city ended in abject failure.

Backed by 21 warships at Shanghai's wharves, Japanese naval forces, estimated to number between 5000 and 8000, moved into the same positions they occupied during the 1932 fighting.

They deployed along the fringe of the Japanese portion of the international settlement and roads extending northward.

CHINESE ARMY RULES

Chinese Central government troops streaming into the city answered to no authority but the army. Civilian authorities would not try to stop them.

United States Marines, 1050 strong, mobilized with the Russian, French and British garrisons. The Americans were charged with the protection of nearly 4000 United States citizens in Shanghai and its environs, some of whom were cut off by the Chinese advance.

British forces numbered 950, French 600. A Russian volunteer company was summoned to duty.

Chinese contended that in 1932 the Japanese used their international settlement area as a military base.

Now, the Chinese indicated, they do not intend to recognize the neutrality of foreign settlements.

From the foreign standpoint, this creates the gravest phase of the crisis.

Chinese said that if events "necessitate the move," they intended to enter the settlement to meet Japanese on their own ground.

Meanwhile, munition-loaded motor trucks sped from the Japanese warships to their landing party base, and shuttled back for new loads in endless procession. Sailors cleared the vessels for action.

U. S. MARINES AT POSTS

The Fourth Regiment of U. S. Marines took up their defense posts at the edges of the settlement almost at once. The French did likewise.

In addition the settlement's volunteer forces, consisting of American and other foreign residents, were called to mobilize.

Americans in Shanghai total almost 4000. There are nearly 8000 Britons and about 20000 French.

Japanese residents approach 20,000, tightly concentrated in the northern portion of the International Settlement. Normally, the Americans and other foreigners are widely scattered, many beyond the International Settlement borders.

That caused grave concern for the safety of scores tonight.

At the "peace" conference, Chinese refused to withdraw the troops pouring into the city.

Japanese replied:

"There is nothing left, then, but to take up defensive positions."

The atmosphere of this jittery city of more than 3,000,000 souls was the same as that which preceded the Chinese-Japanese hostilities here in 1932.

TROUBLE ZONE DESERTED

But up to dusk not a shot was heard.

Northern portions of Shanghai about the Chapei and Kiangwan areas were considered doomed to be battlegrounds if the present Shanghai powder keg explodes.

The fringe of the expected trouble zone was deserted. Chinese patrols stamped past vacant houses and shops.

Closer to the international settlement, streets and alleys were jammed with Chinese fleeing from the prospective battlegrounds.

The pathetic procession numbered tens of thousands. Refugees scrambled for space along with cattle, pigs and chickens. Here and there a peasant carried a pig or goat.

Twenty-eight foreign men-of-war were tied up along Shanghai's riverfront. Twenty-one of them were Japanese—five light cruisers, nine destroyers, and seven gunboats.

2 U. S. SHIPS AT SPOT

Two British, three French, and two United States vessels were the "neutral" contingent. The American ships were a navy tanker and a small, obsolete gunboat.

United States Asiatic fleet units remained north, near Tsingtao and Chefoo, off the coast of Shantung province.

Chinese living at the confluence of the Woosung and Whangpoo rivers rushed to Shanghai by boat. The roads were closed by long lines of Chinese troops who felled trees and threw up barricades at frequent intervals.

The refugees came in every manner of craft, from huge launches to tiny rowboats, all crowded to capacity.

The river junction was the scene of terrific fighting in 1932, with Japanese ships attacking the Chinese Woosung forts.

CONSTRUCT AIRFIELD

Japanese labored into the night to make ready an airfield on Shanghai's eastern border. Swarms of Chinese coolies strained and groaned under Japanese direction.

As yet, no Japanese warplanes had arrived. At dusk, however, reports were that these planes were offshore on aircraft carriers.

Unconfirmed reports from Hongkong said British forces there, numbering four battalions, were ordered to prepare to entrain for Shanghai if necessary.

Britain Consults U. S. on War Action

London, Aug. 12 (INS)—Great Britain is planning to consult the United States and France with a view to determining whether any "parallel action" can be taken by the three powers to restrain Japan in North China, it was learned today.

The newly coined term "parallel action" was used to avoid the inference of a joint demarche by the world powers upon Tokyo.

Tokyo, Aug. 12 (INS)—One hundred Chinese nationalist troops were slain and the remaining 500 put to flight when a counter-attack on Japanese forces at Liangsiang was repulsed, dispatches from Tientsin today said.

Only two Japanese were killed and 19 wounded.

Liangsiang is an important station on the Peiping-Hankow main rail line south of Peiping.

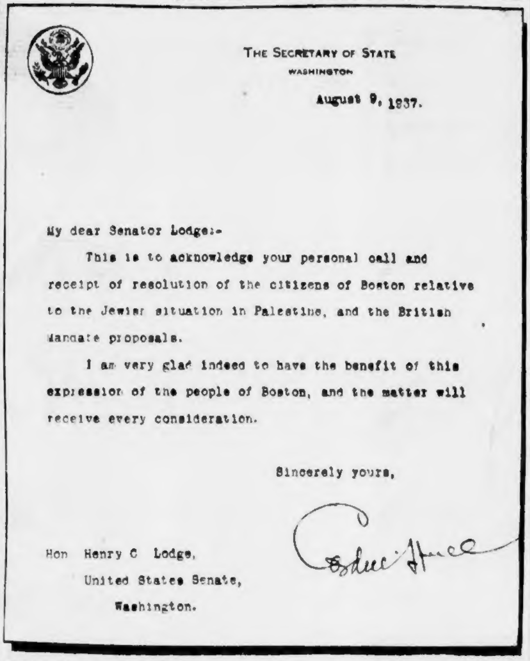
PROTEST BEARS FRUIT



THE SECRETARY OF STATE
WASHINGTON

August 9, 1937.

My dear Senator Lodge:-

This is to acknowledge your personal call and receipt of resolution of the citizens of Boston relative to the Jewish situation in Palestine, and the British Mandate proposals.

I am very glad indeed to have the benefit of this expression of the people of Boston, and the matter will receive every consideration.

Sincerely yours,

Cordell Hull

Hon Henry C Lodge,
United States Senate,
Washington.

The Faneuil Hall meeting, called in protest against the proposed partition of Palestine, and sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, seemed to be bearing fruit today, as witness this letter received by United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. Thanking Senator Lodge for bringing him a resolution adopted at the Faneuil Hall meeting, United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull writes that he is "glad to have the benefit of this expression of the people of Boston." He promises that it will receive consideration.

Palestine Plan Foes Rally for New Battle

SEE WARBURG AS LEADER

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 12 (INS)—Opponents of Palestine's partition, far from routed by the 300 to 158 acceptance in principle of the idea by the world Zionist congress, today rallied their forces for a more fervid battle as they awaited reinforcements coming for the meeting of the Jewish Agency Council.

Almost solid enmity for the partition scheme is expected from the non-Zionist section of the Agency, which has a voting power of 50 per cent. The Zionist half, however, believes its view, as voted by the majority of the Congress, will prevail in the end.

Many thought the fight may be so violent that continued unified existence of the Agency may be threatened.

WARBURG ON WAY

At the head of a powerful American non-Zionist delegation, Felix M. Warburg, New York banker, who is expected to be the most influential opponent of splitting Palestine, was en route to Europe today.

Non-Zionists stressed that the Jewish Agency, rather than the Zionist Group, is authorized under the British mandate to advise with Britain on matters of Palestine policy.

Those who voted yesterday in favor of authorizing Dr. Chaim Weizman, Zionist president, to negotiate with Britain regarding possible establishment of an independent Jewish state in a divided Palestine argued today that the move did not definitely commit Zionism to partition.

The resolution, it was pointed out, called for another especially-elected Congress to accept or reject the results of the negotiation.

Anti-partitionists, however, said acceptance of the idea of negotiations more or less binds Zionists to support whatever plan results.

If the future Congress, they contended, rejects the prospective state plan, it will be even more difficult than now for Jews to carry on in Palestine under the British mandate.

REPORT TO GENEVA

Dr. Weizmann was in Geneva today to report the Zionist Congress's decision to the mandates commission of the League of Nations.

Tomorrow the commission, which has been studying the question for two weeks, will again quiz William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, British colonial minister, who will re-appear in support of the partition recommendations of the British Royal Commission.

Preliminary findings of the mandates group regarding recent Arab-Jew riots and the practical Arab rebellion against Britain, with a general survey of the operation of the mandate, will be submitted by the commission at September's meeting of the league council.

Meanwhile, the Zionist Congress continued today, its atmosphere still strained, with study of more routine questions.

Frail Woman Routs Armed Bandit in Everett Store

Sickly and frail, but with a courage many men would not exhibit, Mrs. Margaret de Piano, 49, lunged at an armed bandit today in her Everett variety store, frightened him away—and then fainted.

The youth, about 21 years old and of swarthy complexion, fled the store in Robbins street, hastily pocketing his revolver, then leaped into a car and was driven away by a second man who was at the wheel. He got nothing.

Mrs. de Piano was alone in the small store when the bandit, wearing a brown suit, entered and asked for a pack of cigarettes. She turned to get them and the youth came around the counter toward the register, which contained about $100.

"This is a holdup; get back," he ordered, producing the revolver, but the slim, frail woman disregarded the weapon as she dived for him.

Seven Bostonians, six persons from Cambridge and three from Lawrence are among the 34 New England passengers.

She escaped with comparatively minor damage and reported that she would be only about five hours late in reaching her first port of call, Quebec, on Saturday. Captain W. B. Coyle is the skipper.

For hours after the crash was reported much concern was felt for the safety of the Boston Diesel-engined trawler Maine, which is off Georges Banks with a crew of 15 fishermen.

Capt. William Carson, the trawler's skipper, however, flashed word to his owners, the Booth Fisheries, that his craft was safe.

Strangely enough, his message was dispatched at 9:57 a. m., just eight minutes after the Danish ship sank.

MEAGRE MESSAGES

The freighter was first taken in tow by the Canadian ship but as seas poured into the wound in the Maine's side and she slowly filled, the lines were cast off.

The Duchess had wirelessed at 7:55 a. m. that it would stand by until arrival of a salvage tug, the Franklin Foundation, which had been sent out of Halifax, N. S., under forced draught.

But shortly before noon Radiomarine Corporation station at Chatham got a message from the Duchess saying that the Maine had sunk at 9:49 a. m. and that the liner would continue on to Montreal.

The crash came as the passengers of the Duchess were in the dining room for the evening meal, according to the first report received by the Coast Guard at 11:04 o'clock last night.

That message gave only the news that there had been a collision. Nine minutes later the Duchess reported she was taking the crew of the Maine off in her own boats and that all had been accounted for.

The Duchess made no appeal for aid, but at the first flash of the disaster, the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company sent the ocean-going salvage tug, Foundation Franklin, steaming to the scene of the crash.

Coast Guard headquarters stood by for further word, ready to send a cutter, but none was received.

One of the passengers, Herb Tolden, a Philadelphia newspaperman on his vacation, was able to get a brief message through, however, saying that the Duchess was undamaged and that its crew and passengers were unhurt, but that the Maine was hopelessly crippled.

He said that the gaping hole in the freighter's hull was back about 40 feet from its bow on the port side and that the ship was taking water fast.

The Maine was on her way from Oslo, Norway, to Norfolk, Va., under command of a Captain Brinck. She is of only 2185 tons, compared with the tremendous 20,000-ton Canadian liner.

The Duchess has been in trouble before. In October, 1935, while she was plying between Liverpool, England, and Montreal, she was helpless off the coast of Ireland for 18 hours when her rudder was damaged. Tugs went to her rescue.

In 1929, when she was making a South African cruise, four passengers and two seamen were stricken by malaria and sunstroke and died.

$5500 WILLED HARVARD

Harvard University and the Cambridge Historical Society each receive substantial bequests from the estate of the late Miss Maria Bowen of Fallon street, Cambridge.

Her will was filed in Middlesex Probate Court. She died July 21.

Miss Bowen left $3500, interest of which is to be used as an annual scholarship for a "poor law school student of good rank and character."

She also left Harvard $2000 to provide an annual prize for the best essay on "a subject having to do with moral philosophy or civic polity."

This is to be known as the "Francis Bowen Prize," Miss Bowen directed.

She left the Cambridge Historical Society her home in Fallon street and one-half the residue of her estate, after payment of the Harvard bequests and individual bequests totaling $8500.

Miss Bowen's five heirs-at-law, sons and daughters of a first cousin, were not mentioned in the will.

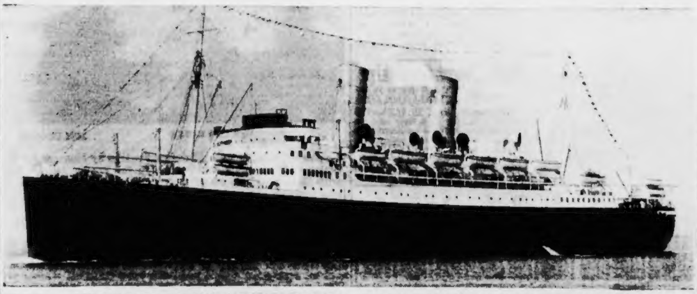
Patrolman William T. Boudreau today was recovering from abrasions and contusions of the knee and elbow as the result of being struck and knocked down by a hit-and-run driver—a 12-year-old boy on a bicycle.

The policeman was on traffic duty last night at Porter and Chelsea streets, when he was struck. The boy fled down a side street and escaped.

LUXURY LINER UNHURT IN SEA COLLISION



DUCHESS OF ATHOLL, SAFE AFTER SAVING 23 FROM STRICKEN DANISH FREIGHTER

THE ZIONIST VOTE—WHAT IT MEANS

The vote of the world Zionist congress in Zurich to negotiate with Great Britain on the proposed partitioning of Palestine leaves the question exactly where it was before—with the mandates commission of the League of Nations.

The action of the congress is vigorously and rightly opposed by the vast majority of the world's Jewish people, and it does not commit them to the British plan for restriction of the Jewish national home.

The mandates commission has given every evidence that it will make a searching study of the British proposal.

It is no more likely to be influenced by an unwise vote of the Zionist congress than by an unjust project of the British government.

Heat Continues Despite Storms

A promise of relief from the nine-day heat wave that has gripped Boston proved short-lived today after two heavy electrical storms had toppled the mercury to 70 degrees at 6 a. m., but only for about an hour.

By noon the temperature had climbed back to 79 degrees and weather officials said it would rise into the 80's during the afternoon.

Freshening southwest winds brought the sweltering city its only breath of relief, but high humidity carried a threat of further discomfort.

Occasional showers today and tomorrow were predicted, with slightly lower temperature over the week-end possible.

BLONDE Held in Death PROBE

4 AGED MEN INVOLVED

Cincinnati, Aug. 12 (AP)—Held on fugitive warrants charging murder and grand larceny, a comely 31-year-old blonde was held today as police, investigating the deaths of four elderly men, said she admitted benefitting from the estate of one and had sought to collect money from two of the others.

Four mysterious illnesses—of two men and two women—also were under scrutiny as city, county and federal authorities delved into the history of the woman, Mrs. Anna Filser Hahn.

DEATH PROBED

Colorado Springs, Colo., police have been investigating the death there, August 1, of George Obendoerfer, 67, moderately wealthy Cincinnati cobbler, who, police say, was accompanied by the woman after she first had gone to the bank with him when he withdrew money for the trip.

Detective Walter Hart who filed the murder and larceny warrants against Mrs. Hahn said he was "not at liberty to divulge the basis for the action." Police Inspector I. R. Bruce of Colorado Springs said that so far as he knew no murder charge had been filed there.

Mrs. Hahn, widow of a Viennese physician, denied knowledge of the case and contended, Lieutenant George W. Schattle said, that she met Obendoerfer "by chance" en route West.

The three other deaths under inquiry were those of Jacob Wagner, 78; Albert Palmer, 72, and Ernst Kohler, an elderly teamster, who died several years ago. Wagner's body was disinterred a week ago and portions of the viscera are being subjected to tests for poison, Schattle reported.

$12,000 HOME

He said Mrs. Hahn cared for Kohler in his last illness and that she claimed Kohler bequeathed her the $12,000 home in which she has resided with her telegrapher-husband.

George Heis, 63, a coal merchant who said he had been unable to walk since becoming ill from eating food offered by Mrs. Hahn, filed another larceny warrant charging theft of a $75 diamond ring and $140. Mrs. Hahn denied Heis' charge, insisting he gave her the ring during their short acquaintance.

Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt said police had learned that Obendoerfer, Wagner, Heis, another man and two elderly sisters, Mrs. Ollie Koehler, 79, and Mrs. Mary Arnold, 95, had become ill suddenly shortly after making the acquaintance of Mrs. Hahn.

N. Y. Beauty to Wed Prince Mdivani? 'Yes, or No'

Naples, Aug. 12 (AP)—Muriel "Honey" Johnson of Bronxville let her yellow hair stream into the wind today on the sun deck of the liner Conte Di Savoia and questioned herself:

"Will I marry Prince David Mdivani? Perhaps yes, perhaps no," she laughed.

Miss Johnson, attired fetchingly in white beach shorts, a sky blue blouse and a smile, is sailing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson, for New York.

They have been in Venice. So has Prince David, surviving Mdivani brother. One report has it they were together Tuesday when David's motorboat ran afoul of a Venice canal sandbar.

Corona Is Blanket Covering Sun, Harvard Finds

Harvard astronomers, studying airplane pictures of last June's total eclipse made by an army flier, declared today that science would have to revise completely its conception of what the sun's corona is really like.

Photographs made from a height of 25,000 feet as the moon's disc hid the sun revealed, they said, that the fiery streamers emanating from the sun, shown in all previous eclipse pictures made from the earth's surface, are in reality minor phenomena.

Actually, the corona is an even, globular blanket covering the sun more than a million miles deep, astronomers attending the conference at the Harvard Observatory were told.

To Major Albert W. Stevens, U. S. A., widely-known stratosphere explorer and member of the Hayden planetarium-Grace eclipse expedition to Peru, went the credit for shattering previous ideas about the sun and the blazing aura that is revealed only at times of a complete eclipse.

Flying through the substratosphere under conditions of great physical discomfort, he made three series of photographs, all of which showed a perfectly even corona surrounding the sun.

HEROINE CHEERED BY VALOR LEGION

A slender, delicate 12-year-old girl departed from Boston today en route to her home at Erie, Pa., the nation's most coveted "hero" medal pinned on her breast.

In her ears resounded the cheers of 400 Legion of Valor men, distinguished recipients of Congressional and D. S. C. decorations, as they applauded Cevilla Sallet for her act of courage in pulling her mother, her small brother and sister from their gas-filled home last winter.

Governor Hurley gave the principal address of the Valor Legion's concluding dinner of their 47th annual reunion here, lauding the little girl who sat, wide-eyed, at the honor table.

When Cevilla stood to receive her medal, she intended to make a speech.

BUT SHE SMILED

Flashlights flared, the crowd cheered, and Cevilla looked awed at the ovation.

Her smile stayed, but no speech came.

Then she sat down.

The terror she suffered in rescuing her family from death by gas poisoning, returned in the dreadful foreboding of having to talk of it.

Other distinguished guests who attended the dinner included Rear Admiral William R. Gherardi, commander of Charlestown navy yard; Adjt.-Gen. Charles H. Cole, and Mayor Henry S. Wheeler of Newport, R. I.

Ralph W. Robart, Cambridge, was re-elected national commander of the Legion of Valor in the final session, with George Harvey, New York, as senior vice-commander.

OFFICERS NAMED

Mrs. Frederick R. Cushing, Sharon, was elected president of the women's auxiliary.

Other officers named include Phil Duff, Chicago, junior vice-commander; the Rev. Thomas I. Taylor, chaplain, and Ben Prager, Pittsburgh, adjutant.

Auxiliary officers include Mrs. Herman Steinkraus, Newport, first vice-president; Mrs. George Nee, Boston, secretary; Mrs. Ralph Robart, historian; Mrs. John McCloy, Newport, treasurer; Mrs. George Bradley, Newport, retiring commander; Mrs. Anthony Carson of Chelsea, and Mrs. Harold Batton, Boston, directors.

TIES Girl to Stake AT SEA

MAN SWIMS FOR AID IN VAIN

Milford, Ct., Aug. 12 (AP)—Searchers scanned the waters of Long Island Sound near here in vain today for traces of Charlotte Lieberum, 35, a Bridgeport school teacher, after George Wallace Thorpe of New Haven said he tied her to an oyster stake and swam ashore when his 17-foot sailboat capsized.

Thorpe, exhausted after an estimated two-mile swim through rough water, staggered up Walnut Beach more than eight hours after he and Miss Lieberum set sail for the Housatonic Yacht Club at Stratford. He told residents of his experience and collapsed.

Milford hospital authorities said he suffered from exposure but that his condition was "good."

Soon after Thorpe and his companion left the club last night for "a short run" down the Housatonic river, John A. Onkey of Bridgeport reported to Sergeant Victor Marcus of the Stratford police that while watching through binoculars, he saw a sailboat tip over in a squall far out in the sound.

FIND NO TRACE

Immediately Stratford police put out to search for two persons whom Onkey said he saw tossed into the rough water. Later they were joined by the Milford police boat and other searchers, but no trace of the boat or its occupants was found for several hours.

Then Thorpe came ashore and at the hospital told police how the sailboat, the "Send," really a dory with jib and mainsail attached, upended in a squall, leaving himself and his companion at the mercy of the stormy waters.

TWO MILES OUT

Thorpe said he and Miss Lieberum started swimming shoreward but that she became tired and taking off his shirt he tied her to an oyster stake. He could not say how far the stake was from shore but authorities estimated it to have been "a long ways out."

Authorities declined more than to estimate the distance off shore that the accident occurred but the fact that the boat was visible only through high powered lenses led many to believe it was between one and one-half and two miles.

Allowing for drift they concluded Thorpe swam two miles. In the dark he was unable to gauge the distance from shore of the stake to which he lashed Miss Lieberum, and searchers merely roped through the night in an effort to cover all possible territory.

MRS. HENRY C. WHITAKER

Weds Dartmouth Halfback

ICE CARNIVAL ROMANCE

With a great show of pride last winter, Tudor Wall of California, Dartmouth senior, introduced his very pretty girl friend to envious classmates at their winter carnival in Hanover, N. H.

His joy knew no bounds later when 19-year-old Florence T. Allen, hazel-eyed brunette from Birmingham, Ala., was chosen from 600 girl guests to reign as the snow queen for 1937.

Today the romantic aftermath of those starry winter nights is disclosed in her secret marriage to one of those envious classmates—Henry C. Whitaker, handsome quarterback of the 1936 Dartmouth football team.

Whitaker and the girl escorted by Wall seemed to "click" from the very first meeting. The chance meeting blossomed into deep friendship after the carnival and the couple were secretly wed at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 29.

Disclosure of the romance came in a formal announcement at Birmingham of Mr. and Mrs. E. Allen, parents of the Dartmouth queen.

They made no comment beyond the announcement, but an aunt revealed that the family didn't know of the wedding until ten days ago.

Whitaker is the son of Mrs. B. S. Whitaker of Madison, Wisconsin.

Girl, 8th in Family, Takes Holy Vows

Lawrence, Aug. 12 (AP)—Gertrude R. Lamontagne, the eighth member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Arsene Lamontagne to enter religious life, today joined the Sisters of the Society of Mary at Bedford.

The youngest of 15 children, she has six sisters who are nuns, and a brother, preparing for the priesthood.

Two sisters, Sisters Marie Rosalie and Marie Julien, are members of the Society of Mary stationed in the Samoan Islands. Four others, Sisters Cecile Gerard, Therese Gertrude, Marie Lucille and Cecile Collette, are members of the Holy Union of the Sacred Heart.

Their brother, Emile, who studied five years at Bedford and the past year at Sillery, Quebec, will enter the novitiate of Marist Fathers at Staten Island in the fall.

Dear Sir:-

If you are the gentleman who yesterday tendered us a crisp dollar bill for the privilege of saying "charge it", please pardon our surprise.

You see, we've been inviting men to "Charge it the Bond way" for over seven years. Naturally, we thought everybody in town knew that this Bond Service costs nothing extra. Why should it?

Perhaps you, or your wife, have a charge account with a department store. Is anything added to your bill because you pay once a month? Of course not! True, we gave you the added convenience of paying weekly, or twice a month. But it's still a charge account—a friendly service with no strings to it, no penalty tax.

Thanks for giving us the chance to make this clear. It'll probably open the eyes of a lot of men. Because during August, we're selling New Fall Suits AT NO INCREASE IN PRICES. And a Bond Charge Account will make it easy to cash in on this "break".

WAGE ACT TIEUP AGAIN DELAYS ADJOURNMENT

Washington, August 12 (AP)—Congressional chieftains moved back today the tentative adjournment date to August 25 because of scraps over wage-hour and anti-lynching legislation.

They had hoped to quit by August 21. House leaders, however, abandoned hope of getting the wage-hour bill out of the rules committee and onto the floor before next week.

Disposition of that measure, once debate begins, and of other administration bills may take 10 days or more. Some members, in fact, predicted the session might last through Labor Day.

FACE LONG DEBATE

The Senate faced the possibility of a long debate on the anti-lynching bill. Administration forces had intended to hold it back until their regular program had been enacted.

Senator Wagner (D.) of New York surprised them yesterday, however, by winning recognition to debate it. The bill's supporters defeated a motion which would have sidetracked it.

Leaders nevertheless were trying to reach an agreement to consider it next session. There was talk, too, that the wage-hour bill might go over until January, but not without a fight.

LOCKED TIGHT

A majority of the House rules committee, opposed to the labor standards measure, was refusing to give it legislative right-of-way. The committee acts as a sort of sifting group for all major bills and ordinarily can hold up any which it does not favor.

One member, Rep. Cox (D.-Ga.), said "tremendous pressure" was being applied to get the bill to the floor. He added:

"There is no punishment, pressure or influence that can be brought to bear that will persuade this committee to grant a rule for its debate."

Administration leaders, stymied by the committee's refusal to act, were considering several methods of overcoming the opposition.

Calls for Police And Is Arrested

Charles E. Hackney, of Dover street, South End, reported today that $1800 of his veteran's bonus money was stolen, and went to a police cell as a result.

Hackney called police from a telephone booth in Cambridge, claiming he had been robbed of the $1800 he had been saving for a trip to Maine.

Hurrying to the tap-room where Hackney said he had been robbed, police arrested Hackney on a charge of drunkenness.

He said he fell asleep and awoke to find the money missing.

Senator Black Named as High Court Justice

ing clerk, after the nominating paper was received a few minutes past noon. There had been announcement at the White House.

Senator Ashurst (D) Arizona, judiciary chairman, immediately asked that the nomination be considered in open executive session. This has been the custom whenever a senator is appointed to high public office.

Senator Burke (D) Nebraska, a leader in the fight against the President's bill to reorganize the Supreme Court, suggested the nomination be referred to the judiciary committee for "careful consideration."

TO STUDY QUALIFICATIONS

Senator Johnson (R.) of California also objected. Ashurst then withdrew his motion and the nomination was refered to the judiciary comittee in the regular order.

This was a distinct rebuke to Black, since the Senate usually confirms the appointment of a senator to high office without referring the nomination to ac ommittee. This has been a custom unbroken in the last 20 years.

Senator Ashurst immediately announced the appointment of a special sub-committee to study Black's qualifications for the Supreme Court. The sub-committee included:

Senators Neely (D.) of West Virginia, chairman, Logan (D.) of Kentucky, Dieterich (D.) of Illinois, McGill (D.) of Kansas, Borah (R.) of Idaho and Austin (R.) of Vermont.

Ashurst said the sub-committee would meet "as soon as called together by Chairman Neely."

BURKE OBJECTS

In voicing his objection to immediate confirmation, Burke said:

"The nomination should go to the committee for careful consideration by all means. This is an appointment of great importance, and I think the Senate should be given full opportunity to study the appointment."

Senator Johnson said:

"The situation that is facing the country today is fraught with seriousness, and although I am not expressing favor or disfavor of the President's appointment I think that it should be sent to the judiciary committee for full consideration."

This provoked enator Barkley (D.), Kentucky, majority leader, to say:

'In view of these statements, I think that it would be unwise to go into executive session to consider the nomination at this time."

CONGRATULATE BLACK

Black sat in his usual seat while this discussion took place. He was showered immediately with personal congratulations. Scores of senators, the Democrats first, then the Republicans, walked up to his seat and shook hands with him.

Even Burke joined the parade.

project, has just returned from Spanish service and is now signing up recruits for the Abraham Lincoln battalion of the Red Army in Spain, according to the Communist Party bulletin.

His brother, Edward C., was commander of this battalion and another brother, Charles A., Communist candidate for the U. S. Senate in Massachusetts last year, was political commissar.

All three were wounded and returned to Boston to start a lecture tour for the purpose of enlisting recruits for the loyalists.

In addition to the first-named, Flaherty, other Red "honor roll" members who worked on WPA projects are listed as follows:

Robert F. Allen, of Rockport; Paul Arthur Burns of Boston; Mike Aronberg of Boston, all employed on the WPA writers' project.

Allen was national organizer for the Writers' Union, composed of those drawing U. S. Government pay.

Robert M. Taylor of Boston, a member of the White Collar Union, was listed as another Red soldier.

His mother and grandmother are supposed to be members of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

George Douglass, one-time New Hampshire farmer and an organizer for the Workers' Alliance in Lexington, is the sixth on the Reds' WPA list and Samuel Krafsur, who was paid as a member of both the WPA music project and a member of the White Collar Union, is the seventh.

Krafsur returned from Spain a few days ago, wounded.

From Greater Boston were recruited the following men who have seen some of the hottest fighting of Spanish war and some of whom may have become casualties since the recent compilation of the list: Jim Forest, Cambridge; Howard Bailey, Boston; Barton Carter, Brookline; George Anderson, Boston; Daniel A. Fitzgerald, Boston; William Hathaway, Boston; Conlon Nancarrow, Boston.

Marcus M. Alper, Boston; Jean Bornstein, Cambridge; Milton M. Levin, Lynn; Harry Stamler, Boston; Frank Zeidman, Chelsea; Dave Walba, Boston; Peter J. Gasper, Boston; Doug Roach, Provincetown; Richard Johnson, Boston; John Villemaire, Lowell, and Jim MacMahon, Boston.

$317,000 For N. E. Harbor Work O.K'd

Contracts totalling approximately $317,000 for the improvement of New England harbors and waterways have been approved by War Department division engineers, it was announced today in Washington. They are part of a $500,000 nationwide program.

Contracts included:

Great Lakes Ddedge and Dock Co., New York, $302,579 for dredging Hog Island channel, Buzzards Bay, Mass.; John Hamre and Son, Quincy Mass., $15,430 for construction of a storehouse, Cape Cod canal, Buzzards Bay; and Herbert T. Gerrish, Boston, $68,834 for dredging Coney Island Creek, N. Y.

York Beach Denies Goodwin Charge Of Auto 'Racket'

Operation of a "cheap racket" at York Beach, Me., against out-of-state motorists arrested if they take a glass of beer, was charged in a statement today by Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin—and immediately denied by York Beach authorities.

"My attention has been called to a cheap racket up there," said Goodwin.

"If a driver of a car, particularly an out-of-state car, goes into a restaurant he is spied upon, followed and arrested if he gets a glass of beer."

The registrar said one Bostonian who had a single glass of beer with his dinner was locked up over night, fined $100 and forced to pay $17.88 court costs.

"There's something screwy in that statement," declared Police Chief Harley B. Ellis of York when informed of Goodwin's warning.

"I don't know what Registrar Goodwin is talking about. We don't allow drunken driving here, but the one of two arrests we make during the season on that charge are not the result of any racket."

Chief Ellis said he knows of no Massachusetts man arrested and fined, but that a New Hampshire man drew a $100 fine a week ago for drunken driving.

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—Old Babe, a four-ton elephant who entertained thousands in her lifetime, was buried last night in a huge grave at the National Zoo. She died yesterday at an age estimated at 99.

Old Babe traveled with a circus more than 50 years and came to the zoo three years ago. When she collapsed Sunday, attendants said it was the first time she had lain down in nine years.

WHEELER SEES U.S. LIBERTY IN COURT DEFEAT

Providence, Aug. 12—America will refuse to surrender political liberty on the plea that it is the only way to accomplish economic liberty now, it was asserted today by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D.) of Montana.

Speaking at the 74th commencement of Bryant College, Senator Wheeler based his theme principally on President Roosevelt's vain attempt to pack the Supreme Court and reasons for failure of this attempt.

The President's packing plan, declared the Montanan, was killed by "those thinking people who feel that an independent judiciary is an indispensible and integral part of the American form of government."

At the exercises, presided over by Dr. Henry L. Jacobs, president of Bryant College, honorary degrees were conferred on Senator Wheeler and four others.

HONOR MRS. MELONEY

These four are Marie Mattingly Meloney (Mrs. William Brown Meloney), journalist and editor of "This Week"; Judge John W. Sweeney, former Rhode Island Supreme Court justice; Victor Howard Frazier, treasurer of the High Street Bank and Trust Company, Providence, and Harry Arthur Hopf of London, England, management director.

The Metropolitan theater was used for the commencement exercises, at which the largest class in the institution's history graduated. Commencement will close tonight with the senior class prom in the Biltmore Hotel ballroom.

Describing congressional warfare over the Supreme Court issue, Senator Wheeler told the graduating class and guests:

"We were called on to decide whether the court should reflect the administrative whims of the party and the people in power or whether it should stand an independent coordinate branch of a Democratic government."

PACKING SCORED

Pointing the the Senate's rejection of the plan by a 70-to-20 vote, he declared:

"The Senate and the people are not willing to forsake the principles and risk the future of democracy for any doubtful and temporary benefits which might result from a stream-lined government.

"If anyone can pack the Supreme Court in order to have it override one portion of the Constitution, it can packed in times of hysteria to override the Bill of Rights and take away our liberties.

"It has been said that we must pack the Supreme Court to liberalize the Constitution. What is Liberalism? Today in Europe, Liberalism and Dictatorship are synonymous. To be a Liberal in Italy you must believe in Fascism, and to be a Liberal in Germany you must believe in Hitler.

"However bad the Supreme Court of the United States may have been, and I have been one of those who have disagreed with many of its decisions in which economic issues were involved, that court has been the bulwark for the preservation of liberties granted the people of these United States by the Constitution.

MUST PRESERVE LIBERTY

"The slightest inroad on our political and personal liberties cannot be permitted. Liberty is too fragile, too delicate, too beautiful.

"We will not surrender political liberty on the specious plea that it is the only way to accomplish economic liberty now. That is what the Italians have done, and that is what the Germans expected from their surrender.

"Dispassionately, with reason and with practical intelligence, you, the younger generation, will meet and conquer the failure of the present economic system.

"Tyranny and dictatorship shall not invade these United States. Political idealism will not perish. Freedom of thought and its modes of expression, safeguarded by you, will continue unabated.

Wheeler Praises Black For High Court Post

Providence, R. I., Aug. 12 (AP)—Senator Hugo Black of Alabama is a very able individual and should make a good Supreme Court justice, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, leader of the fight against President Roosevelt's Supreme Court plan, said here today.

Told that his colleague in the Senate had been named, Senator Wheeler, at a luncheon here held in connection with the Bryant College graduation, said:

"He is a very able individual. He will undoubtedly be confirmed. I think he will make a good justice."

BLACK LONG ROOSEVELT AIDE

FOUGHT FOR NEW DEAL BILLS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 12—Just as he startled the enate si: months a;o ization of the Supreme Court, Presi- by proposing his sweeping reorgan- dent Roosevelt today dipped deeply into his surprise bag again today and nominated Senator Hugo L. Black, Alabama liberal, to the only vacancy existing on the high bench.

Of the hundred-odd names that have figured in the speculation for this appointment, Black's had never attained the prominence of being mentioned in public print.

His senatorial colleagues sat in stunned silence as the Senate reading clerk intoned the brief message of his nomination. They were as much surprised as anyone. Indeed, the nominee himself seemed somewhat surprised.

UNUSUAL CAUTION

After the initial shock had passed, they trooped about his desk and offered their personal congratulations to the quiet-mannered, hard-hitting Alabaman.

But in the prosecude that immediately followed, there was an indication that even though Senators ordinarily are confirmed for high posts without palaver, this is one nomination that is going to be scrutinized minutely before confirmation.

For Senator Black is a New Dealer of the first water. Of all the deep South contingent in the Senate, Black is and has been the most sincere follower of President Roosevelt in the New Deal's legislative struggles.

LED WAGES FIGHT

Currently, he is co-author of the Black-Connery wages-and-hours bill, which has passed the Senate and is now clogging the road to congressional dajournment. The entire conservative Democracy of the South is opposed, onely or covertly, to this legislation, which Blacbk sponsored and, with aid of northern and western Democrats, pushed through the Senate in a bitter battle.

Ultimately this legislation may come before the Supreme Court on a test of its constitutionality, and if and when confirmed the new justice may sit in judgment on his own handiwork, unless he should elect to disqualify himself.

Black's record since he came to the Senate from Alabama in 1926, a rather obscure lawyer, has been one of sustained devotion to so-called progressive or liberal legislation. In that respec he differed frequently with his souhtern colleagues of more conservative leanings.

ENATE PROSECUTOR

Not only has he sponsored and supported labor legislation of advanced type, but he disclosed himself on several occasions to be a dogged, and at times a brilliant, prosecutor of Senate investigations.

He directed the Senate investigation of lobbies a year ago, attracting much attention and some criticism by the vigorous manner in which he went after private files of telegrams and papers of corporations. Earlier in the New Deal, he directed the investigation into the air mail contracts negotiated by the Hoover administration, which resulted in the cancellation of many of those contracts.

At 51, he is now serving his second term in the Senate, and was to have been up for re-election next year. Because of his sponsorship of the wages-and-hours bill and his devotion to other New Deal legislation which the conservatives of the deep South disapproved, he was certain of stiff opposition.

CHANGES COURT

When confirmed—and there appeared little doubt but that he would be confirmed after a studious interval—Black will succeed to the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Wilis Van Devanter, a Republican of the old school, who until his retirement in June had an almost unbroken record of voting against New Deal legislation. Thus the switch on the bench, from the standpoint of political and economic philosophy, is about as complete as it could be.

From a practical standjoint, the appointment was considered a shrewdly ideal one for Mr. Roosevelt. He has supplnted a conservative member of the Supreme Court with one whose whole record is the antithesis of conservatism, and at the same time he has given the Senate a nomination that it cannot easily reject, or even seriously question.

Rival Labor Chiefs Find Black O.K.

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—Nomination of Senator Hugo Black to the United States Supreme Court drew expressions of hearty commendation this afternoon from the rival leaders of American organized labor.

John L. ewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said Black's was "an admirable appointment, one that will be applauded by the nation."

"The burly leader added: "The CIO is for him."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said the appointment "is both pleasing and satisfactory to labor."

SNELL ACCUSES DEMOCRATS OF BOOK FRAUD

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—Representative Snell of New York, the House Republican leader, told the House rules committee today that sale of books on the Democratic national convention to corporations was "disgraceful and demoralizing political racketeering." He said $18,000,000 in fines was collectible under federal law for the sales.

Carrying a bundle of 21 exhibits, Snell asked committee approval of his resolution for an investigation.

He charged copies, autographed by the President, had been sold illegally to more than 900 corporations for $250 each.

The committee quickly tabled the resolution by a vote of 8 to 3, along strictly party lines.

The acceptance of political contributions from corporations, direct or indirect, Snell argued, violated the Federal corrupt practices act.

"Evidence from many quarters," he said, "indicates that threats, intimidation and coercion by the regular routine sales methods employed by agents of the Democratic National Committee in soliciting individuals and corporations having business before the several departments of the federal government.

"In many cases, these threats amount to bold demands, closely approaching, if not actually constituting, political tribute

19 Die as Torrent Wrecks Homes

SEEKING DEAD IN STATEN ISLAND RUINS

MORE BODIES HUNTED IN DEBRIS

New York, Aug. 12 (INS)—Nineteen persons were known to be dead and two others were missing today as police and firemen tore apart debris of three storm-crushed, ancient structures at nearby New Brighton, Staten Island, in search for additional bodies.

The two missing persons were believed to have perished along with the 19 others when the weather-beaten tenements collapsed like papier mache after their foundations had been sapped by the relentless drive of a torrential downpour that swept the Eastern seaboard last night.

Subjected hour after hour to the pressure of the wind-lashed storm, the frame and brick structures sagged ominously at about 9:45 o'clock last night. A moment later, overflowing storm sewers on a nearby hillside spewed forth a boiling torrent that raced downhill and flung itself against the weakened walls of the 50-year-old buildings.

Groaning of timbered joists was the first warning. There was no other. With a roar akin to a thunderclap, the structures crashed as though hit by a bomb, the tinny jazz ground out by radio receivers mingling like a grim requiem with the shrieks and moans of the dying.

DIE INSTANTLY

The bodies of six men, five children and seven women were recovered from the wreckage early today. Nearly all died instantly.

All three of the adjoining houses contained six rooms and were two storiese high. The occupants who were on the first floors, listening to the merry music of the air waves, were crushed by falling timbers. The others, who had retired to bedrooms on the top floors, were catapulted to the cellars.

SCENES OF HORROR

Alarms were immediately turned in and police and firemen rushed to the scene from all parts of Staten Island. They plunged into the Herculean task of digging into the debris for the dead and injured.

More than 250 firemen, police and other city workers labored in the water-soaked and muddy ruins, amid scenes of horor. The victims were buried in mud and water under tons of debris, some of which swirled as far as 100 feet away to the foot of a sharp hill on which the dwellings stood.

Position of some of the bodies indicated they had been caught in a whirlpool of water, mud and slivered timbers.

DIES, BABY IN ARMS

One of the last of the bodies found was that of a patrolman, Joseph McBreen, the father of a 2-weeks-old baby. He died in an attempt to save 4-year-old Virginia Budnick. When his body was extricated from the debris, the child's body was nestled in his arms.

The courageous McBreen, one of the first to arrive at the scene, was pinned down by a falling beam.

Some of the victims were crushed by the falling timbers, others were drowned in the water-filled cellars, and still others, trapped in the debris, were suffocated.

Several residents of adjoining houses narrowly escaped destruction. One of these, Charles Brock, seized his wife and five children and ran out of his house when he saw the building next door wabbling.

PROBE OPENS

Even as police and firemen sawed and hacked through the wreckage, four separate investigations were started to determine responsibility for the catastrophe, characterized by Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine as "the worst in the history of Staten Island."

One investigation dealt with complaints that inspection of the structures had been infrequent and desultory. One report was that one building had been condemned months ago.

PRIESTS STAND BY

A searchlight, brought to the scene by police, casts its beams on the debris as rescuers dug feverishly with picks. Thousands of nearby residents, including hysterical relatives of the dead or missing, had to be forced back by police. Two priests stood with the rescue workers.

Joseph Jestrom, 17, saw the catastrophe from his apartment on the hill. He said:

"There was a crash and a great cloud of dust. Then there were terrific screams. Then they died away, and everything was quiet."

RUMBLE AND ROAR

Another eye-witness, Ray Howear, Journal-American photographer, said there was a dull rumble and then a screech as the top floor beams and timbers were torn away.

"The rumble grew to a roar," he said. "The whole structure sort of sagged forward and came down in a mass of flying wreckage. I heard a woman moaning, 'Help me! Help me!'"

Seven-year-old Gladys Peterson daughter of one of the victims escaped death, thanks to the rain. She was visiting a friend and stopped in a doorway near by on her return, waiting for the rain to stop. Two minutes later, the tenement in which she lived collapsed.

As enormity of the tragedy dawned on the little girl, and her relatives failed to emerge from the debris, she sobbed:

"Haven't they found my mother yet?"

And later, referring to her two sisters:

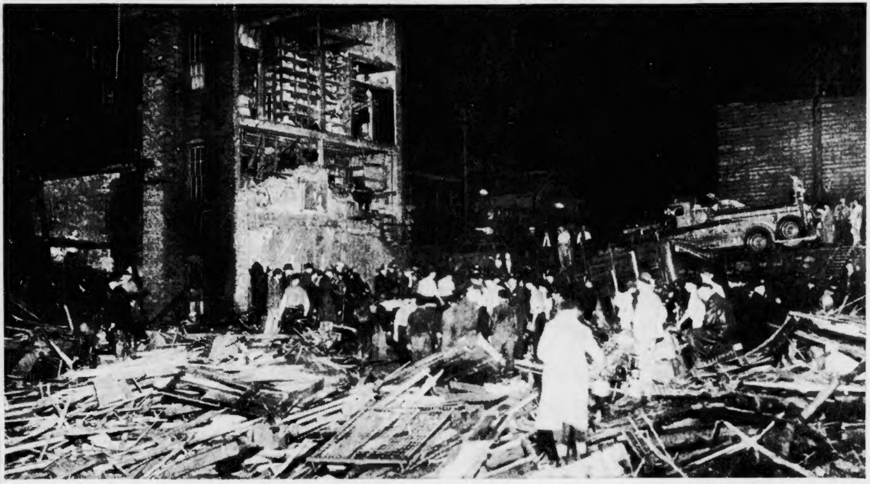
"Did they get the two children?"

4 OTHERS DIE IN STORM

The severe electrical storm which preceded the disaster was the second of its kind to lash the East within a few hours. The storms caused four other deaths in the metropolitan area.

John Prokopchuk, 12, was killed when etruck by lightning while swimming in the East river, and Edward Henick, 37, of Garfield, N. J., was killed by a bolt in East Paterson, N. J.

Helen Bassett, 16, of Patchogue, L. I., and Robert Schwartz, 18, of Bellmore, L. I., were drowned when their canoe capsized during the first storm.



In this rain-swept, mud-bedaubed tangle of wreckage, at least 19 persons died at New Brighton, Staten Island, when three frame and brick dwellings came crashing down. The picture shows houses that remained standing, stripped of their outer walls. In progress was the dangerous work of seeking bodies. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

Here police and firemen have just uncovered the body of one of 19 persons known to have been killed in collapse of three wood and brick dwelling houses at New Brighton, Staten Island. The mud in which the dead man was partially buried is evidence of the fury of the rain-water flood.

R. I. Coroner Denies Doctor Death Solved

Providence, R. I., August 12—"Coroner Carl K. Strauss will not be able to name either the murderer or the motive for the slaying of Dr George W. Webster, on the basis of evidence he has now, when he presents his report to Superior Court."

This terse contradiction of a statement allegedly made by the coroner that the mysterious killing of the East Side society doctor had been virtually solved, was given to the Boston Evening American today by sources high in the Attorney General's office and Providence police department.

Representatives of both departments have been sitting in on the star chamber sessions of Coroner Strauss' secret inquiry into the murder, and these meetings have yielded nothing to prove who killed the physician, these sources declared.

Statements purporting to say that he can name the murderer and death motive in the case, attributed to Coroner Strauss, were emphatically denied by the coroner himself today.

Providence police have already branded the slaying as "the perfect crime," scouting reports that the coroner's investigation is heading toward a speedy solution.

"We have no gun, and of course a court will insist that we produce the instrument of death," a police official stated.

Though no definite results have sprung so far from the efforts to trace the slayer of Dr. Webster, according to police, Governor Robert E. Quinn today declared he is perfectly satisfied with the manner in which Providence police and the attorney-general's office are handling the case.

FARNUM LASHES BACK AT MAYOR

J. Driscoll, I would have opposed the reading of it.

"I assumed we were going to get an impartial and scientific opinion by an expert. This is a recitation of information that came from William J. Driscoll.

"This expert doesn't take the word of Thomas Flynn, the city's own inspector, but does take the word of Driscoll.

"Mark Linenthal, the expert engaged by the Finance Commission, applied to Driscoll for information and Linenthal testified here that Driscoll first made an appointment with him and later 'phoned him and said, on advice of counsel, he would not furnish Linenthal with any information."

"BETTER INVESTIGATOR?"

Assistant Corporation Counsel Brennan, addressing the Finance Commission, asked:

"Am I to understand that Mr. Farnum complains that I am a better investigator and was more successful in getting the facts than he was?"

"I deny that anything offered by William J. Driscoll can be regarded as fact," retorted Farnum.

Robert Robinson, member of the Finance Commission, addressing Brenan, asked:

"What do you mean, you were more successful than Mr. Farnum? Does that mean Mr. Driscoll is more amenable to you than to the Finance Commission."

"It does not," replied Brennan.

'BAD ADVICE"

"Don't you think Driscoll should should haxe talked to Linenthal?" asked Robinson.

"Yes, I think he should have," said Brennan.

'Don't you think it is very suspicious that Driscoll wouldn't give any information to Linenthal but did to your expert?" continued Robinson.

'No," replied Brennan. 'He probably received bad advice."

Counsel Farnum remarked that he considered it highly significant, and one of the highlights of the whole investigation, that Driscoll had talked with an expert hired by the administration, but kept silent to the Finance Commission's engineer.

Brennan was refused a chance to read a question-and-answer interview which he (Brennan) had with Benoit.

ON WAY TO MEXICO

The latter is now on his way to Mexico but will be available for cross-examination by Farnum later, if the commission's counsel wishes to question him.

In his statement, Benoit denied the Codman Hill concern had to do some work twice, because of a mistake.

He branded Building Commissioner Edward W. Roemer's $30,000 estimate as far too low for a job for which the Codman Hill company was paid $45,000.

He said Roemer figured columns, for underpinning of a building, at $3 each, when they actually cost $6.50.

HITS BACK AT MAYOR

Renewing theb battle between the Finance Commission and Mayor Mansfield, Counsel Farnum at the hearing today accused the mayor of "vilification" and "crude misrepresentation" over the radio.

Mansfield has spoken twice over the air recently, referring to "the black gang on the Finance Commission" and assailing Farnum.

While not mentioning the mayor by name or title, Farnum said:

"I have attempted to be fair under circumstances trying beyond measure. Unusual courtesies have been extended.

"For which I thank you," said Brennan.

"He now thanks us," continued Farnum, turning to the members of the Finance Commission. "But I've been brought up on the old saying that actions speak louder than words.

"Whatever I have done here has been misrepresented. Whatever I have said has been grossly garbled and crudely misrepresented on this floor and over the air to the taxpayers.

"I will not comment any further on the unprecedented courtesies which have only resulted in a thank you on this floor and vilification and personal attacks elsewhere.

'WITNESSES SILENCED'

"Mr. Brennan has from the beginning to the present attempted to close the mouths of witnesses from city departments when I attempted to draw from them information concerning these various transactions.

"He has disrupted the proceedings and then sat down smiling, obviously playing a role.

"There never has been, in the whole history of the Finance commission, such consideration shown as to the present administration, despite the impression that counsel tries to convey here and others try to convey on the air.

"I am trying to get at the bottom of this almost impenetrable and sinister mystery."

Brennan retorted:

"I hope Mr. Farnum will not expect me to restrain myself from smiling once in a while. If I didn't smile and laugh off some of these troubles, I'd be behind the bars."

There was a burst of laughter from the spectators and Brennan hastened to add:

"Not behind criminal bars."

Jinx '13' Will Be Theme Of Wedding, Friday, 13th

PAIR PICTURE ROSY FUTURE

"Thirteen is just another number to me."

So declared smiling Lucy Elizabeth Hodder, 19, of Sycamore street, Belmont, who will flaunt superstition tomorrow in a marriage shadowed by that ominous figure.

She and her groom-to-be, Frederick L. Ratta, 23, of Trapelo road, Belmont, who unwittingly chose Friday the 13th as their wedding date, discovered that the numeral played a prominent role in their nuptial arrangements.

"When it dawned on us that I lived at 13 Sycamore street, we simply laughed at the coincidence," said the pretty Miss Hodder.

"But when we discovered, also, that there was a total of 13 diamonds in my engagement and wedding rings, and that Howard Heller, the best man, was 26 years old—twice 13—, well we decided to make the "jinx" number the theme of our ceremony."

And so, at 5:13 the couple will be married tomorrow evening by the Rev. Charles A. Bidwell in the Waverley Congregational Church.

The bride-to-be will carry a bouquet of 39—three times 13—roses, and the bridesmaid, Miss Betty Carlson, of Holden road, Belmont, will wear a gown with 13 bows.

And tonight 13 will attend the bachelor dinner in honor of the groom-to-be.

The couple intend to climax the "13" situation by taking a suite on the 13th floor of a New York city hotel after a honeymoon trip through New Hampshire and New York state by automobile, if they can find one.

Somehow or other the number was overlooked in connection with the wedding reception which will take place in Carpenter Hall at the church after the ceremony, but there it is—13 letters.

6 Workers Injured In Strike Clash

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP)—Six workers of the Heinz manufacturing plant were injured today in a clash between 15 employes and a group of men, more than twice their number, who appeared in automobiles.

Some employes of the plant, members of the United Automobile Workers of Americva, have been on strike since July 14.

COUPLE TO FLAUNT SUPERSTITION AND FOLLOW IT THROUGH

LUCY ELIZABETH HODDER FREDERICK L. RATTA

Boston Evening American Photo

Miss Lucy Elizabeth Hodder, 19, of Belmont, who defies superstition by setting her wedding date for Friday, the 13th of August, which is tomorrow, points smilingly at the ominous number on the calendar without the slightest fear for the future. Indeed, she carries her defiance several steps further by making the theme number of her wedding to Frederick L. Ratta, 23, of Trapelo road, Belmont, the same old "Unlucky 13." The bridegroom is shown in inset.

N. E. FACES PRODUCE SHORTAGE IN STRIKE

New England marketmen faced a produce shortage today as 60 railroad cars stood idle on sidings at the Boston Terminal Market Company in South Boston, the result of a deadlock in the strike of 600 employes of three unions.

The cars are loaded with perishable fruits and vegetables, and have not been touched since 3 a. m., when about 150 delivery clerks stopped work, along with several hundred sympathizing truck drivers and freight handlers.

William F. Quinlan, president of the company, said an agreement had been signed with the stevedores in July, through the T. F. Quinn Company.

CHARGES PACT VIOLATED

"This strike is a violation of that agreement," he continued. "Some time ago Edward A. Lanza, of the A. F. of L. unit, the brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, came to us and asked that each company in this market sign a separate agreement that would put all our clerks in the union.

"He could not show us that he was authorized to act as bargaining agent, and we did not sign. Now we have this strike."

Lanza, in his turn, declared the companies had agreed to sign a contract guaranteeing a sliding wage scale, but had later refused.

PLAN APPEAL TO HURLEY

Sixty employer members of the Terminal Company are meeting this morning to discuss the strike, and announced they may appeal to Governor Hurley for help.

Thirty-seven companies are affected. Three American Federation of Labor affiliates, the Marketmen's Union, the teamsters' local of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes' Union are involved.

Special details of Boston and railroad police were sent to the scene to maintain order, although there was no trouble in the early hours of the strike.

Scouts to Meet in Scotland

The Hague, August 12 (AP)—The International Boy Scout conference decided today to hold its next session in Scotland in 1939.

State Board Acts To End Strike on Nantasket Boats

Officials of the Boston-Nantasket Steamship Company today conferred with representatives of the newly-formed Marine Transportation Workers' Union before the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation, seeking to settle the seamen's strike crippling boat transportation to Hull, Nantasket and Pemberton.

Two of the company's four vessels plied between Boston and the Pemberton peninsula today, carrying meager groups of tourists and commuters.

Only 189 passengers boarded the S.S. Town of Hull as she left early today on her first trip to Boston from a rain-swept, deserted dock at Pemberton.

An even smaller crowd left on the Mayflower one hour later.

A small group of passengers were driven by bus to Pemberton from the Nantasket landing, where the vessel usually starts her Boston trip.

SCORE HURT IN GUILD RIOT AT SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 12 (US)—The Seattle Star succeeded in issuing its regular editions last evening after a band of teamsters wearing A. F. of L. badges aided by police, dispersed American Newspaper Guild pickets in a brief but furious street battle.

Heads were battered and missles tossed, causing injuries to two Guild members and lesser injuries to nearly a score of others. Three rioters were arrested.

The rioting climaxed the six weeks' old Seattle Star newspaper strike, which arose from a dispute between the rival unions over jurisdiction of circulation department workers. Management of the Star replaced 19 guild members from the circulation department with teamsters.

100 IN FRAY

Ranks of the guild pickets were augmented by waterfront workers and a large group of CIO sympathizers. Their picket lines were massed about the entrance to the plant and around the truck delivery estimates. Estimates of the number in the guild picket lines varied from 20 to 100.

Suddenly a shouting throng of more than 100 men wearing Teamsters' Union badges converged on the picket lines.

Fist fights ensued at a score of points and the pickets slowly gave way before the attackers. Police, answering a series of riot calls, appeared on the scene and broke up the rioting.

The first edition of the Star appeared on the streets an hour late.

REPORTER INJURED

Paul O'Neill, Seattle Times reporter, was knocked unconscious by two men tentatively identified as teamsters. Witnesses said the men kicked him after he fell.

Harold Smith, Seattle Times photographer, and Jack Heise, striking Star photographer and chairman of the Star Guild chapter, had their cameras smashed. Heise was also badly beaten.

The teamsters' group escorted union printers into the plant after the pickets were forcer nearly a block from the scene.

Earlier in the day one-half of the newspaper's mechanical force succeeded in getting into the plant. The others were temporarily halted by the pickets.

The teamsters remained at the plant throughout the afternoon to insure trucks leaving the plant were not stopped.

Europe Objects To U. S. Teeth

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Europe is worried because we're renting six warships to Brazil. Folks, that don't prove anything except that American dentists are the best.

When we rent six warships to South America we are putting teeth in the Monroe Doctrine.

Nobody said much when the Scotch built a cruiser for the Japanese. That's the boat that turned turtle. When the Scotch heard that they charged 'em two dollars extra for terrapin.

Seems we can rent warships to anybody who can pay for them. Business goes on as usual during alterations to the customer.

London Times to Ignore Nazi Order

Berlin, Aug. 12 (INS)—The London Times has decided to ignore Germany's request that its correspondent, Norman Ebbut, be withdrawn from Berlin, it was learned today.

Such a decision will compel the German government to take the next step and order Ebbut's expulsion, if it chooses to do so.

SOVIET CABINET HEADS SEIZED AS TRAITORS

Moscow, Aug. 12 (AP)—Nadyrbay Aitakoff, fisherman president of the Turkmenistan Soviet Republic, and 10 other high officials were reported today arrested as "Trotskyists, Fascists and traitors."

The Ashkabad newspaper, The Turkman Flash, said Vatfy Ataieff, formerly commissar for agriculture, was elected to replace the dismissed president.

Others reported dismissed included the premier, vice-premier and eight other leaders.

Death of 72 alleged railroad wreckers before firing squads had today brought to 320 the reported executions in Russia's Far Eastern campaign against "Trotskyists."

The Irkutsk newspaper East Siberian Pravda reported the shooting of the 72.

It described the band Asntrotskyist, rightest terrorists who operated along the Siberian railroad for the Japanese secret service with the idea of weakening Soviet transportation in case of war.

The accused were charged with causing a train wreck in which 14 persons were killed and many injured among workers and their families who were en route to settle the new town of Konsomol.

Concurrently, the drive continued against "wreckers" held responsible for failure to meet production schedules in various branches of Soviet economy.

COMMISSAR SCOLDED

Isidor E. Liubimoff, commissar of light industry for the Soviet Union, has been scolded publicly by the official newspapers Pravda and Izvestia and warned he had better see that Soviet comrades get more stockings, shoes and cloth to wear.

Failure of Soviet cotton mills, stocking factories and other plans in light industry to fulfill their quotas, although their production is higher than before, has drawn steady criticism on officials for months.

The manager of a Leningrad stocking factory is under arrest, awaiting trial. P. M. Vorovna, woman director of the silk industry, and three managers of different textile factories, have been discharged.

BEHIND SCHEDULE

Light industry's own newspaper reported that at the end of the first half of 1937 it was behind schedule to the amount of 26,000,000 pairs of stockings, 4,800,000 pairs of shoes, 7,000,000 suits of underwear, 32,300,000 pieces of ready-made clothing, 285,000,000 yards of cotton cloth and 76,000,000 spools of thread.

Trotskyist wreckers, enemies of the people and "double dealers" have been blamed freely for the situation.

One reason for Russia's production troubles, said "For Industrialization," is that it apparently takes two or three Russians to do the work of one American.

Fatal Plane Crash Report Submitted

An official report of the airplane crash in which Peter J. Cummings, 24, Milton student pilot, was killed Tuesday night, was submitted to the registrar of motor vehicles today by Major Clarence E. Hodge, who conducted an investigation.

Funeral services for Cummings, who crashed his plane into a garage on Robbins road, will be held tomorrow from his home, 19 Winthrop street, Milton.

Cantacuzino Gets Ocean Flight O. K.

Harbor Grace, N. F., Aug. 12 (Canadian Press)—Permission has been granted Constantin Cantacuzino to clear from Harbor Grace airport on a flight across the Atlantic, officials said today.

Cantacuzino, a Rumanian prince who plans to fly around the world, is expected at Harbor Grace within the next two weeks, they said, and all arrangements here are complete.

Mitchell Air Races Cancelled by Army

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP)—Major Edwin J. House announced today that the annual Mitchel Trophy air races would not be held this year. Major House commands the first pursuit group of the G. H. Q. air force.

The race had been scheduled for Selfridge Field Sept. 18. No explanation of the cancellation was given, except that "circumstances have made it advisable."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Looks like a good break for this Hi-Li pupil, Miss Regina Burton. She's learning the technique of the fascinating racket-and-tethered-ball game from a real expert, Frank Thomas of Stillwater, Oklahoma. Frank is Hi-Li champion of the Pacific Coast. He says anyone can be good at Hi-Li. It's just a question of practice. So why don't YOU get started.

Game Attracts Interest Of Young and Old

They will play Hi-Li with the greatest of ease.

You've seen the game by this time. It's sweeping the country and Boston has gone Hi-Li crazy.

It's played with a small paddle about the size of those used in ping pong. To the paddle is attached, with an elastic cord, a small rubber ball.

Take the ball, hit it with the paddle. On the rebound hit it (or try to) again. Keep this up—you can do it for hours if you're good—and you're playing Hi-Li.

The Boston Evening American, in co-operation with theaters in Greater Boston, is sponsoring a series of elimination Hi-Li contests in which many and varied prizes are offered. All contestants will get a free candy bar at contest theaters.

Join at your neighborhood theater right away. Today's contests will be held at:

9:30 a. m.—Medford Theater, Medford.

10:30 a. m.—Waltham Theater, Waltham, and Hamilton Theater, Dorchester.

11:30 a. m.—Watertown Theater, Watertown.

Tomorrow's contests will be staged at:

9:30 a. m.—Strand Theater, Chelsea.

10:30 a. m.—Revere Theater, Revere.

11:30 a. m.—Lincoln Theater, Quincy Point.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

Damon Runyon

Our American farmers, and our American "right" bettors are in the money. The "right" bettors are the lads who bet the dice will win, as opposed to the "wrong" bettors, who bet the dice will lose.

Simultaneously with the report from the bureau of agricultural economics in Washington, that farm income reached its post-depression peak the first half of 1937, comes word from our research department in Saratoga Springs that, since the racing season opened, the biggest crap game the country has seen in ten years has been raging there.

Of course, there is no connection between these matters, except that the farmers who went in for wheat were, in a sense, "right" bettors, too. But that is a nebulous connection at best, and the only reason we mention the two situations in the same breath is to round up all the prosperity news of the hour in one session.

DICE RUNNING HOT

Our Saratoga research department states that the dice are running hotter than an old-fashioned base burner in the big crap game. When the dice run hot, the "right" bettors, or the lads who bet with the bones, take the money. When the dice run cold, the "wrong" bettors, who bet against them, gather in the sheaves.

It may be that the fates decide at a man's birth whether he is to go through life as a "right" or "wrong" bettor. He rarely changes the decision from youth to old age, though some men try.

The difference between a "right" and "wrong" bettor, is the difference between mere optimism and cold calculation. The "right" bettor is likely to be a cheerful fellow, who always hopes for the best. The "wrong" bettor is apt to be of gloomy countenance and demeanor, who is probably convinced that all life is 6 to 5 against, and can prove it by figures.

BOTH WIND UP BROKE

Statistics show that there are more "right" than "wrong" bettors in the United States, and that both wind up broke.

But, about this big crap game at the Spa, now. Our research department there reports the same post-depression peak that the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is talking about, as having been reached last Saturday night, when all the high shots of the Atlantic seaboard, and some traders from far-off ports, assembled about a table in a downtown Saratoga spot.

Not less than $25,000 was in action on every turn of the dice. There has not been a crap game like that, at least in the East, since Man o' War was a weanling. And Saturday night was only one night, touched up over ordinary nights by the presence of the high shots.

The spot where the game is in progress is a wide-open place on a side street, somewhat disrespectfully referred to by some persons as a "sawdust joint" because it has none of the elaborate trimmings of the average Saratoga institution of this nature.

However, our Saratoga research department says the term "sawdust joint" is a misnomer, as well as rude, as there is one room in the place where a gentleman is expected to wear a coat. And, of course, trousers.

HEADS AND TAILS

They have a new form of dice game at the Spa, according to our Research Department, known as heads and tails craps. It has been devised in the interests of convenience and speed.

If a customer wishes to wager "right," or that the dice will win, he places his money, which in the East is inevitably paper, face upward on the table. In other words, a $20 bill would be so disposed that old Andy Jackson would be staring stonily at the ceiling, that side of the bill corresponds to "heads" in minted money.

If the customer wishes to indicate that he thinks the dice will lose, he plants his money on the table face downward, or "tails up." This does away with the necessity of explaining the bet orally, and with arguments afterwards, too.

ACES PERCENTAGE

This game is conducted by the house, and if you are betting "wrong," the house does not allow the two aces to run for you, but holds them out as its own percentage.

In the East, the high shots usually meet in the style of game known as money craps, which is a game among the players themselves. The more familiar type of crap game is what is called the banking game, operated by the house, and involving an elaborate layout.

The high players do not care much for this type of game because of the percentages exacted from the player by the house. These percentages are as tough on both the "right" and the "wrong" bettors, as some of the percentages that are levied one way and another, against our American farmers when they happen to hit a good season.

COUPON-CLIPPERS ENJOY SAIL

Their foresight in clipping coupons from the Boston Sunday Advertiser enabled these happy excursionists to enjoy an all-day sail to Provincetown, at half price, aboard the S. S. Steel Pier. They'll be watching for the next Boston Sunday Advertiser Coupon Day. Why not follow their example?

Putnam Still Has Hopes for Amelia

Los Angeles, Aug. 12 (AP)—George Palmer Putnam, publisher, arrived here by plane fom New York, today said he still entertained hope for the safety of his ocean-flying wife, Amelia Earhart, missing more than a month in the South Seas.

Half-Fare Cruise Set for Monday

The Boston Evening American's next coupon sail to Provincetown aboard the Steel Pier on Monday will be welcomed by hundreds of readers who are anxious to get away from the heat of the city.

The coupon which allows holders to pay half the regular boat fare on next Monday will be published in the August 15th Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Fares with the coupons will be cut to a dollar for adults and to 50 cents for children under 12.

The Steel Pier will sail from Long wharf at 10 a. m. and will return at 7:45 p. m. There will be the usual two-hour stopover at historic Provincetown, thus allowing passengers ample time to visit this spot at the end of Cape Cod.

Coupons will be redeemed at the box office on Long wharf at the foot of State street on Monday morning.

Be sure to clip your coupon from the Sunday Advertiser if you wish to take the all-day ocean sail on Monday.

Leeds, Furriers, Plan New Store

Announcement has been made that Leeds, Furriers, have taken over the six-story Manahan Building, 280 Boylston street, for their second Boston store. It will be opened in the near future.

Like the present store at 35 Winter street, it will be devoted to furs of distinction, as well as fashions in frocks, suits and coats. In the new location Leeds supplants Manahan's, the well-known specialty shop. Ernest Manahan will be an executive of the new store.

FETE OFFICERS WITH GIFTS

Lieutenant Arthur C. Cadegan and Sergeant Francis J. Mulloy today were in receipt of handsome gifts presented to them by superiors, friends and fellow officers in the Blue Hills division of the Metropolitan district police at a reception last night in honor of their recent promotions. The affair was held at division headquarters in Milton.

Associate Commissioner William F. Rogers presented Lieutenant Cadegan with a traveling bag and Superintendent Edward M. Woods made a like presentation to Sergeant Mulloy. Arthur Cadegan, Jr., was given a traveling case by Deputy Superintendent Harry Hayes, and Captain Joseph P. F. Rooney of the Blue Hills division presented Mrs. Mulloy with a manicure set.

Among others present were Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Rooney and daughter, Margaret, Miss Mary Cleary, Miss Agnes Brennan and Captain Michael Sullivan, commander at the Nantasket station.

Last Air Tragedy Victim Is Found

Salt Lake City, Aug. 12 (AP)—An eight-month search for the victims of the December 15 air tragedy was ended today, and the body of Co-pilot William Bogen of Burbank, Cal., last of the seven to be found, awaited the arrival of relatives.

Goldwyn Gets Baker For 'Follies' Lead

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Aug. 12—Looks more and more as if L. O. P.'s hunch about Sam Goldwyn and Mervyn Leroy was right on the nose. Just before she left for Europe she wired back the scoop that the two producers were planning future tie-ups.

Harriet Parsons

The other day came the first verification when I told you that Mervyn was borrowing the six boys of "Dead End" fame from Sam and would star them in "Who Asked To Be Born." And today comes the announcement that Sam will borrow Kenny Baker from Leroy for the romantic singing lead in the $2,000,000 "Goldwyn Follies."

Deal was consummated today after a three hour conference between the great Goldwyn and the mighty mite during which Sam viewed Mervyn's "Mr. Dodd Takes The Air" in a private projection room.

Rumors are rife that King Vidor and his former script-girl, Betty Hill, eloped secretly the day following completion of "Stella Dallas." King and Betty have been "going together" for a number of years and are now in England with a party of friends. They've been reported wed on various previous occasions, but this time we have a hunch it's true.

Myrna Loy will cast aside her sophistication temporarily and go rural in "Test Pilot" with Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy. Myrna has just been handed the role of the Kansas farm gal who falls in love with test pilot Gable when he cracks up in her pa's wheat field. Louis D. Lighton will start production September 15 when Myrna returns from a brief holiday in Mexico City with husband Arthur Hornblow, Jr. Victor Fleming will direct.

• • •

Due to the fact that Eddie Robinson has commitments elsewhere and "The Last Gangster" will have to be rushed before the cameras immediately, M-G-M will not have time to make it the pretentious production which was planned.

• • •

Line or Two: M-G-M has been negotiating with Jessie Matthews for the lead in "Show Girl," based on the Ziegfeld musical by William Anthony McGuire. Now, however, it develops that although McGuire has the stage rights, Warner Brothers own the J. P. McEvoy book from which the show was adapted. Metro will try to acquire the Warner rights.

Cecil B. DeMille is trying to borrow Donald Crisp from Warners for an important spot in "Buccaneer." Incidentally, Paramount's luncheon party tomorrow to celebrate the launching of "Buccaneer" also marks C. B.'s birthday and his 35th wedding anniversary . . . Beatrice Lillie's second picture for Para following the Crosby epic will be "The Man in Evening Clothes." Emanuel Cohen is considering Alan Mowbray for the title role . . . Gloria Stuart will burst into song in "Life Begins at College."

BETTE DAVIS so much improved they're expecting her back at the studio within two weeks. Weird noises coming over the sound system on "The Bride Wore Red" set had the sound engineer stymied until he traced 'em to FRANCHOT TONE who was munching popcorn. MOTHER-DAUGHTER PRIZE

Here are today's winners in the Boston Evening American's mother-and-daughter picture contest. Just sending in their photograph gained $10 for pretty Miriam Applebaum and Mrs. Rose Applebaum of Wellington Hill road, Dorchester. But it's not too late for YOU to win a similar prize. Two more crisp Boston Evening American checks for $10 each will go to persons sending mother-and-daughter pictures selected for publication tomorrow and Saturday. The contest is inspired by the mother-love play, "Stella Dallas," coming tomorrow to the Loew's Orpheum and State theaters.

There are few pictures as charming as one of a mother and her daughter.

The Boston Evening American knows how highly these photographs are valued by those who possess them. Recognizing their intrinsic value, this newspaper is offering cash prizes for outstanding mother-daughter pictures.

In addition to a first prize for the outstanding picture of the day, the five next best entries will each win a pair of tickets to "Stella Dallas," the film which begins tomorrow at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Today's winner—the third of the contest—was submitted by Miriam Applebaum, 19, Dorchester high school graduate. It shows Miriam and her mother, Mrs. Rose Applebaum, who live at 84 Wellington Hill road, Dorchester.

You don't need expensive photographs for this contest. Just send simple, clear pictures which are easy to reproduce to the Stella Dallas Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

If you wish the pictures returned, please enclose the same amount of postage necessary to send the package to the Boston American offices.

"Stella Dallas" is a Samuel Goldwyn production beautifully portraying the story of a mother and daughter parted by social barriers. It stars Barbara Stanwyck.

The five ticket winners are Mrs. John White, 398 Parker street, Newton Center; Miss Sadie L. Gale, 40 Hichborn street, Brighton; Miss Evelyn Campbell, 28 Gayhead street, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Lillian Harvey, 9 Hopedale street, Allston; and Mrs. R. Ambler, Surfside road, Minot.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

This almost went to court, but cooler brains in the lads' camps have just succeeded in arguing 'em out of it . . . It's the case of two eds, heads of two local suburb newspapers — throw-aways — and they've been feuding on this and that for some time, so long, in fact, they've forgotten what started it . . . Well, Ed. No. 1 opened a contest in his sheet, with prizes offered . . . Ed. No. 2 saw a good backlash in this, so he galloped to police and yelled that the contest was illegal because of certain quirks . . . The cops advised Ed. No. 1 to lay off, and he hadda quit it just when things were rolling good . . . Few days later the 1st editor was walking along the st. and saw the second slow-riding in his car . . . No. 1 hopped on the running board in high dudgeon and pegged his anti with a hard right . . . No. 2 halted the chariot and came out fighting . . . It was a very pretty mill in fisticuffs while it lasted, but No. 1 was vanquished and was going to law when halted, with No. 2 prepared to file a cross-charge . . . Boys will be boys . . .

You sedit—lobster . . . The intriguing note here is that all six of the lobster-eaters (the commissioner's guests at a Fri. nite dinner downtown) woke up at the same time, 5 a. m. Sat. considerably shopworn . . . Timilty was at Scituate, with Gallagher, and before it was over, the commissioner's ptomaine had upped his thermo-reading to 106—close to Benny Drohan's golf mark . . .

All Theater Chiefs Join In Tribute

Victor J. Morris, managing director of Loew's Orpheum Theater, will be honor guest at a reception and luncheon at the Coconaut Grove on next Tuesday at 12:30.

Victor J. Morris

It is expected that nearly 200 prominent film and theater executives will attend the affair to pay homage to the popular theater official, who leaves the following day for California, where he will make his permanent home.

Mr. Morris has been in Boston since 1910.

The committee in charge of the affair is headed by Joseph H. Brennan, executive secretary of the Allied Theaters, who, with Joseph A. Di Pesa, publicity director of Loew's Boston Theaters, have been associated together for more than 25 years. Barney Welansky is in charge of the entertainment.

Dedication On Screen

The dedication of America's mightiest war shrine at Montfaucon, France, on the slopes of the Meuse-Argonne battlefield, is featured in today's release of News of the Day. General Pershing, President LeBrun and American Ambassador Bullitt take part in the ceremony.

King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain are photographed paying their first state visit to Ireland.

Meanwhile, from the Lido, Venice, come views of the world's most famous honeymooners, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. The couple ride the waves on a catamaran, the Duke proving a good oarsman but an impatient camera subject who demands privacy.

OH, FRED! BENNY'S AN ARTIST

Concentration is difficult for Artist Jack Benny and Gail Patrick is the reason. Jack wields a flourishing brush in "Artists and Models," which opened at the Metropolitan today, but in the above scene he is "so annoyed" by Gail's teasing. Well, as "Buck" Benny would say, it's all in an artist's life.

'Stella Dallas' Held Over in New York

The old bull's-eye hitter, Sam Goldwyn, whose productions can always be included out of the flop list, has done it again, according to latest New York bulletins. His latest film opus, "Stella Dallas," is a Goldwyn smash hit at the Radio City Hall, where it is to be held over a second week. It is due at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters tomorrow. Barbara Stanwyck, John Boles and Ann Shirley have the leading roles.

Jane Pickens' First 'Solo'

Jane Pickens is making her first solo appearance on a veriety stage this week, heading the new "Stepping the Town" revue opening at the Metropolitan Theater, starting today. Previously she was featured as one of the Pickens Sisters.

The other two sisters are Helen and Patti. In answer to the question as to what ever became of them, Patti was married last February to handsome, dashing Robert Simmons, tenor of the Revelers, radio's foremost male quartet. Helen is married to Tori Curioni, an engineer.

Neither of the girls has completely retired into domesticity. Patti has been studying dramatics and dancing in preparation for a role in a Broadway show this fall. Helen has been delving into interior decorating.

At the Bowdoin

Bowdoin Square screen's top attraction today and tomorrow is "Sing and Be Happy," a gay, romantic story set to music with Anthony Martin and Leah Ray, the radio favorites. "Meet the Missus" is the companion picture.

'Easy Living' Tops Olympia's Bill

"Easy Living," one of the season's first comedy hits starring Jean Arthur, Edward Arnold and Ray Milland, and "Midnight Madonna," Paramount's mother-love drama featuring Warren William, Mady Correll and little Kitty Clancy, are the screen attractions scheduled for the Washington Street Olympia screen, starting Saturday. They will continue through Tuesday.

Gymkhana at Myopia Attracts North Shore Socialites

By BETTY ALDEN

THE BUDDING young equestrians on the North Shore . . . young Searses, Ayers, Cochranes, Rices and others . . . had a chance to show their prowess on horseback yesterday afternoon in the Gymkhana staged on the Myopia Schooling Field for the benefit of the Hamilton Community Service League . . .

SALLY SEARS

The youngsters performed all sorts of feats from touch and out jumping, to very difficult obstacle races . . . such as riding at a full trot balancing a ball on a paper plate, or taking a bite of a marshmallow suspended in the air by means of a string . . .

The musical stalls, a modern equestrian version of our childhood favorite, "Going to Jerusalem" proved to be a contest between Cynthia and Nancy Burrage . . . whose experience and training in polo, gave them a decided advantage over their opponents, in getting their horses directly into a stall as soon as the signal was given . . . When everyone else had been eliminated, Nancy and Cynthia tied for the prize, so the judges decided to have a play off—or ride off, if you could call it that . . . and Cynthia was the ultimate winner . . . Peter Prince won the junior musical stalls . . .

The familiar old phrase about some riders being born to the saddle certainly is apropos of the 11-year-old Ayer twins, Neil and Hilda . . . they ride full grown hunters with the utmost ease and confidence and always manage to collect a flock of winning ribbons . . . Yesterday, Neil won both the junior and senior jumping events, much to the dismay of his two sisters . . . He competed against Hilda in the junior jumping and outstripped his post deb sister Anne, in the senior event . . . They are sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer of Ledyard Farm . . . whose string of horses contains so many fine greys . . . Freddie Ayer, Jr., and the other son, Ethan, were efficient members of the committee for the affair . . .

Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., was so excited, watching her children, Lucy and Budsy, in various events, that she stood by the rail, without even taking time to find her box seat . . . Major James W. Appleton, former M. F. H. of Myopia, congratulated her heartily when Budsy was awarded the blue ribbon in the touch and out class . . .

Anne and Emily Rice, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Rice, made a good account of themselves before an audience which included many of their aunts, uncles and cousins . . . Anne won the junior saddle class and Emily carried off the blue in the senior saddle class . . . while their mother sat at the official time keepers desk helping her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Ayer, check up on the winners . . .

Mrs. Sumner Pingree occupied a ringside box with her three small sons who will undoubtedly be stars in equestrian events in years to come . . . She wore a becoming cornflower blue silk dress with a wide brimmed white straw hat . . . cinnamon ribbons draped over the open crown . . .

* * *

Fashionables View Events From Autos

MARILEEDS HEARD, Charlotte Rantoul and Anne Dick viewed the proceedings from Martha Proctor's box . . . and just behind them Anne and Frances Sortwell had an excellent view from the front seat of Betty Chalifoux's car, which was one of the long line drawn up behind the boxes . . .

Mrs. George Swift's tangerine linen was a bright spot among so many white clad spectators, as she strolled about with her daughters . . . Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird was surrounded by her own family and her nieces, Barbara and Faith Kidder of Beverly Farms . . . Diana Bird and Barbara Kidder both wore colorful bandanas tied under their chins, peasant fashion . . .

Mrs. Francis Marsh of Dedham enjoyed the cool shade of her car as she watched with her mother . . .

No horse show is good without a spill or two and though the audience thought Sally Sears was a great sport for climbing back on her horse and starting all over again after she came a cropper at the first jump, she took her failure very much to heart . . . Sally, who is just fourteen, has added ice skating to her other accomplishments (toe dancing and riding) and spent the month of July at Lake Placid practising for the annual midsummer operetta there . . . Her mother, Mrs. Francis P. Sears, made her usual chic appearance in a pink outfit, and Sister Sears rode in a number of events . . .

Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., was on hand to encourage her son and daughters as they took part in several events and others present included Mrs. Harold G. Cutler with her daughter, Patricia Preston, and son, Dick Preston, Mrs. F. Wadsworth Busk with a couple of youngsters, Mrs. John Zinsser, Miss Mary Curtis, Ruth Weyburn, Oliver Wolcott, Carrol Raymond and Anne Rice . . .

Sports Enthusiasts Gather at the Casino

AFTER ELEANOR SWIFT completed her committee work at the Gymkhana she went home and changed into a lovely deep cerise evening gown and went over to the Casino in Magnolia with her boy friend, for a little dancing . . . and to join in the conversation about the results of Race Week and the four ball golf tournament at Essex Country Club. . . .

Johnny Goodrich and his bride, and the Tom Gannetts could tell her most about the golf tournament for they had come to the Casino straight from the golf course, to get a bit of frivolity and relaxation . . . Nancy Cassels danced with Standish Van Voorhees and Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick Taylor were in a jolly group . . .

Mrs. Samuel Warren gave a small party at the Casino the preceding evening with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Woods among her guests . . .

NORTH SHORE Deb Will Make Bow at Dance

OLIVIA AMES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow of Chestnut Hill and Magnolia, is one of the attractive group of next winter's debutante set. She is very active in North Shore society affairs this summer and will make her debut at a large dance early in December.

Emmanuel League Plans Lengthy Social Program

To promote the interests of Emmanuel College in the Fenway, the Emmanuel League was founded five years ago. Included in its membership are many mothers of the students and friends of the sisters of Notre Dame who believe in higher education for girls.

Stationed at various resorts for the remainder of the warm weather are many league officers, Mrs. Dennis J. McCarthy of Cambridge, who is holidaying at Brant Rock; Mrs. William J. Prendergast of Mount Pleasant House, Jefferson, who acts as second vice-president, and Mrs. James A. Moore of Brighton.

Vacationing in Canada is Mrs. John J. Attridge of Brookline, while Mrs. Walter B. Farr, an active member of the league, is spending the remainder of the season in Maine.

SUMMERING AT HULL

A group of board members are summering at Hull, preparing for an active club season. Among them are Mrs. John J. O'Neill of Somerville, whose daughters, Rosemary and Margaret, are charter members of the Somerville Junior Women's Catholic Club; Mrs. P. A. McCarthy and Mrs. Fred Crosby of Jamaica Plain, who are staying at their shore homes in Allerton.

Cape Cod is the favorite warm weather playground of Mrs. John Minahan of Brookline and Mrs. Joseph Vaas of Newton, who have leased homes on the Cape for the season. They have taken an active part in planning this season's anniversary program.

Autumn activities start with a meeting in the beginning of October and will continue monthly until May when the communion breakfast will be held at the college on the third Sunday of the month.

SERVE ON BOARD

On the social side a luncheon and bridge will be held in October to be followed by a penny sale the Monday before Thanksgiving. A monthly bridge, third Tuesday of every month, will be highlighted by a large mid-winter party at a downtown hotel.

March's program includes a coffee party, May's a bridge and cake sale.

Serving on the league board are Mrs. Marguerite Maguire of Dorchester, chairman of the International Federation of Notre Dame convention scheduled for August 20-24; Mrs. Thomas A. Dolan and Mrs. Joseph E. Sullivan, who are also interested in the conference, and Mrs. Joseph Duffy of Arlington.

Mrs. Dolphus Langlois of Dorchester is an energetic worker for the Guild's cause. Others are Mrs. Mario Caliri of Roxbury, Mrs. D. J. Casey of Malden, Mrs. Edward Connors of Somerville and Mrs. Thomas A. Conroy of Brookline.

Representing Jamaica Plain on the board is Mrs. Thomas A. Cronin of Jamaica Plain, and Mrs. Thomas Gately serves as West Roxbury's delegate.

Also looking forward with interest to resumption of Emmanuel League activities are Mrs. Harry Harrigan of Dedham, Mrs. Francis Kiley of Milton, Mrs. P. J. Macken of Winthrop and Mrs. John J. Quirk of Newton.

Society Notes

MRS. HENRY APPLETON KNOWLES of Brookline is entertaining Mrs. Henry Harper Benedict of Southampton and Newport, whom Mrs. Knowles visited earlier in the season.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. CHANNING WELLS of Boston are visiting New York for a few days and are staying at the Hotel Regis.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. JOHN JACOB ASTOR are giving a dinner party at Chetwode, their Newport estate, tomorrow evening in observance of Mr. Astor's 25th birthday which occurs on Saturday. Miss Alice Andre is a house guest of the Astors.

Edith Lewis Weds Oct. 8

Another date has been added to the fall calendar of weddings, by the announcement of Miss Edith Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Geoffrey Whitney Lewis of Brookline, that her wedding to Hamilton Richards of Groton will take place on Friday, October 8.

The ceremony will be held in the First Parish Church in Brookline and will be followed by a reception. Miss Lewis has just returned from Squam Lake, N. H., where she has been visiting her fiance's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howe Richards, at their summer home.

Miss Lewis made her debut two seasons ago, sharing honors with Miss Margaret Torbert and Miss Betty Sagendorph at a dance at The Country Club. She is a member of both the Junior League and the Vincent Club.

Mr. Richards prepared for college at the Groton School and graduated from Harvard with the class of 1936.

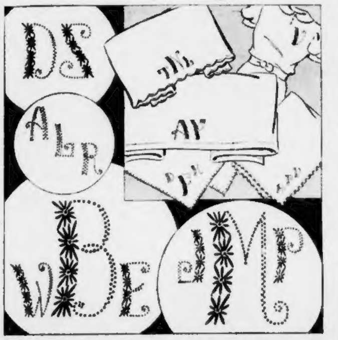
Aristocratic Monograms



ALPHABET PATTERN 1553

IT'S smart to "be personal" when marking linens, for towels, pillow slips, sheets and even personal "dainties" make known your ownership when embroidered with your very own initials.

These are quickly worked in single stitch and French knots, either in a combination of colors or the same color throughout.

Pattern 1553 contains a transfer pattern of an alphabet 2¾ inches high, two 1¼ inches high and one ¾ inch high; information for placing initials and monograms; illustrations of all stitches used.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Guests at Maine Dinner

Miss Constance Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnet Bradley of Convent, New Jersey, who made her Boston debut last season; Miss Margaret Verhoeff, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Verhoeff of Brookline, and Miss Theodora Roosevelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald B. Roosevelt of Bay State road, both of whom are debutantes of this season, were among the guests at a large dinner given at the Northeast Harbor Club in Maine, Tuesday evening. The affair was given by Mrs. Reginald E. Wigham of New York in honor of her daughter, Rosanne Wigham. Following the dinner Miss Wigham and her guests went on to the cabaret at the Bar Harbor Club.

Other of the younger Bar Harbor summer colonists who attended the dinner were Martha Potter, Elizabeth Disston, Patricia Grant, Suzanne Sturgis, Lorna Brennan, Patricia Geyelin, Fernanda Wanamaker, Elizabeth Avery, Dorothy Frink, Hulda Bradley, Eleanor Madeira, Virginia Bradley.

"Your Figure Madame!"

BECOME SLIM WITHOUT HUNGER

By IDA JEAN KAIN

THE ART in reducing is not to go hungry.

If you are to stay with your diet it must stay by you.

Foods that are highest in satiety value, however, are also apt to be high in calories, so the selections must be carefully made. Fats belong in the high-calorie, high-satiety class. They take longer to digest than the other foods.

Moreover, not all the high satiety foods are prohibitive in calories, and the reducer should, of course, take advantage of these foods. Bananas are an excellent addition to the reducing menu and lean meat and milk should be included in the daily diet. Hot beverages and soups are a great satisfaction to the reducer, and they are low in calories. Cooking sometimes makes a difference in the satiety value of a food.

Taking a very small amount of sweets at the end of the meal helps the reducer to feel well fed on less food. A small portion of sponge cake or angel food cake, a custard, or even a small piece of candy tends to convince you that you have had enough food.

Surprising as it may seem, foods which require much chewing, such as lettuce, celery, crisp toast and hard biscuits, seem to appease the appetite more effectively than soft foods.

While the bulky foods, like green vegetables, watery fruits and liquids, give a sense of fullness which is part of the normal satisfaction of hunger, this feeling soon passes and you are hungry again. If you adopt menus comprised largely of these foods, plan to eat more often. Take a glass of skimmed milk in the morning, and tea and fruit in the mid-afternoon.

The "Calorie Chart" and "The Pointers-to-Slimness" furnish valuable information on the business of slimming down. Send a large, stamped and addressed envelope for these two Ida Jean Kain leaflets. Address Miss Kain, in care of Boston Evening American.

Plan Benefit At Ipswich

The second of the North Shore's annual horseback circuses, which are called gymkhanas, will be held on the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., Candlewood Farm in Ipswich on August 25. The first gymkhana for the benefit of the Community Service League of Hamilton was held at the Myopia Training Field yesterday.

Major James W. Appleton, former M. F. H. of the Myopia Hunt Club, is general chairman of the Ipswich affair and has assembled a large committee of distinguished horse lovers to assist him.

The Rev. Carroll Perry, rector of Ascension Memorial Church, which benefits from the gymkhana and the field day and lawn party held in conjunction with it, is assisting Major Appleton. Miss Mary Curtis, who has long been prominent in North Shore affairs, is vice-chairman. Arthur W. Ewell is treasurer of the venture. Howard N. Doughty and Joseph W. Woods head the publicity committee, while Mrs. Joseph W. Woods has shouldered the task of selling boxes.

Other committee chairmen are Mrs. Edward T. Buxton, Jr., mailing lists; Sumner Nichols, advance ticket sale; Miss Rylla F. Saunier, signs and posters; Seward S. Tyler, transportation to and from the field; M. Charles Arthur, parking; Charles Grinnell, mounted gymkhana; Mrs. Maurice M. Osborne, gymkhana on foot.

Girl Who Pushes Herself Seeks Frank Advice --And Gets It

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

No matter how attractive a girl is—if she barges in on a date, as a third party, she is never popular.

I don't care how hard she tries to be agreeable and entertaining, her effort is entirely wasted.

You would think that any girl who realizes she isn't wanted in one set would endeavor to cultivate an entirely new group of friends, even if she has to turn to a new neighborhood.

But such, usually, is not the case. These poor, disillusioned little things hang on, vainly hoping that some day they will be accepted.

Majory, who writes to me today from Stoneham, is such a person. All she thinks about is that she IS NOT POPULAR. Obviously, of course, as long as she does think that, she will be beaten before she starts.

The sensible thing for her to do is to entertain a little in her own home. Without too much difficulty, she ought to be able to have some very interesting parties.

There are homemade sherbets, ice creams and a thousand and one things any young woman can make. And, believe me, no man can resist them.

Instead of forcing her way in on other people, she should make up her mind to stand on her own feet, to be independent and MAKE PEOPLE DESIRE HER COMPANY. It will, I'll admit, require both time and work. But it's worth the trouble.

I know all young women will want to read her letter, so here it is just as she writes it:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Everyone says how attractive I am, with good features, natural curly hair and good complexion, but I never get anywhere, and I am very miserable seeing homelier girls walk off with all the dates.

Even if I should manage a date with a boy, he never asks for another.

Sometimes I go with my girl friend, when she has a date with a boy. Do you think this is proper?

I go to her home every evening, so naturally, when she has a date, she will ask me if I want to go along, and I always accept.

Should I stay at her house when I know she has a date, or leave when her company comes?

Sometimes I think I push myself on people, and that may be the reason why I never get anywhere.

I go to high school, and even there, the other girls snub me.

J. J.

And here is another interesting problem:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Over-ambition was my trouble, but a good many people called it selfishness. I had been married seven years to a kindly, plodding type of man, and we didn't seem to be getting anywhere, financially or otherwise.

We had two children, girls of three and five, and I felt at the time it was as much for their sakes as for my own that I persuaded their father to give me a divorce, and married a man who I felt could do more for them.

He was in the legal department of a good firm, his salary was twice my husband's, and he was in direct line for promotion. What I didn't know about him when I asked my husband for the divorce was that he was a periodical drunkard, and the firm had told him the next time he went on a bender he would be dismissed.

This happened only six months after we were married, and as we had always lived up to his salary, we had nothing to fall back on.

I went to my first husband, as the children were in need, and he very generously gave me $20 a week.

On that, my second husband, children and myself lived. But the situation was awful—No. 2, cranky and crabbed, objecting to "taking a dole" as he called it, from No. 1.

In the meantime, whenever he could borrow, he drank, and our home life was a h— on earth.

I would be very glad to secure a divorce and re-marry my first husband, but he doesn't want that, though he agrees to pay a certain amount every week for the children's support.

MRS. T.

DEAR FRIEND:

The details of your letter, which is too long to print in its entirety, proved to me rather conclusively that that steady, plodding husband of yours was a long-suffering man.

He cannot be blamed for declining to re-marry a woman who was never satisfied with the best he could offer.

He is willing to provide for the children, and you need have no fears that a man of his type will go back on this agreement.

Whether you do or do not get a divorce from your second husband is up to you.

In any case, the sensible thing would be to look around for a job.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Most Efficient, Soothing Hand Cleanser

FROM the Pacific Coast comes to us a powdered cleanser for soiled hands that removes grime and stains in the shortest order ever!

Father, we recommend it most heartily for you, after working on the car or in the garden. Mother—for your needs this busy pickling season, and to make it easy for the children to come to the table with clean hands!

Anyone can actually refine the texture of the skin on both hands and arms (as well as on the face) by scrubbing each night with this powdered cleanser.

Its action is three-fold—not only does it remove dirt and grime from the pores, but it increases the circulation and removes the dead outer layer of cuticle.

This stimulates the production of new fresh skin faster than a normal process would. The skin will take on new life and rapidly become smooth and firm.

Telephone or write in enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I will give you the name of this simple, inexpensive powdered cleanser that does the work that many expensive preparations fail to do.

Guard Health in Trailer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

I HAVE before me a most interesting article. It concerns new sanitation problems that have arisen as a result of the popularity of the trailer.

The importance, the absolute necessity, of getting safe milk and water, as well as providing for the sanitary disposal of human waste, cannot be overstated. Fortunately, in most communities, clean and safe water is available. Along the highways of most states, safe milk can be found.

But all those who travel and live in trailers should be warned against the danger of water from polluted or unauthorized sources. In addition, as the American Medical Association points out, definite steps must be taken to guard against unsafe and insanitary methods of disposal of human waste by trailer travelers.

SOME EQUIPPED

Some trailers are equipped with running water and a flush toilet, as well as an adequate sewage tank. But provisions must be made for trailers without these conveniences. Regulations must be enforced in the control of these vehicles, in order to protect the public. There must be supervision of the food supply, cleanliness, and all measures having to do with sanitation.

Public health officials advise the use of pasteurized milk for trailer travelers. The children of these trailers should be guarded against smallpox by vaccination. In addition to this precaution, they should be inoculated against diphtheria.

Of course, the need of securing immediate medical attention if illness arises cannot be overstated. The increase in the number of trailers will be dangerous only if these traveling citizens are careless or negligent about the fundamentals of hygiene and public health.

CHAPTER 16

Impossible—so very thoroughly, thought Toni, had she covered her tracks—for Brock to have traced her to this one night club out of New York's teeming places of amusement, when no one in San Francisco knew of her work, not even her parents!

And neither Niklas nor his press agent would ever admit that their belle marquise had her beginning as Toni Goddard!

There was comfort in this thought.

By [illegible] back on Guy and [illegible] her [illegible] Harriet Brewster, her face was completely [illegible] from Brock.

"Marquise, I am giving a cocktail party at my house on Friday afternoon. I know that you don't go out much socially—that you have to conserve your strength for your work here—but it would please me if you would drop in any time between five and seven," Miss Brewster told her.

"Thank you. I shall be delighted to come," Toni replied.

FRIEND OR FOE

[illegible]

[illegible] knew. Back in San Francisco [illegible] called "friends."

A [illegible] two had been [illegible] by her parents.

[illegible]

[illegible] that he was [illegible] her [illegible] on Park avenue [illegible] that he wanted her to [illegible] the proper setting to [illegible] in society.

[illegible]

[illegible] that G[illegible] ask her to dance. They [illegible] a turn on the dance [illegible] and she would [illegible] and [illegible] a cab and so make [illegible].

On the way there would be time for [illegible].

SHE WAS TRAPPED

A [illegible] toward Brock would be thought [illegible]. Morning brought wisdom. [illegible] get away [illegible]. Suppose Jessica came to [illegible] her husband recognized her [illegible].

[illegible] of who and what she was [illegible].

The champagne [illegible] of Harriet Brewster [illegible] from T[illegible] the handsome man beside [illegible] Guy? Her eyes [illegible] him.

"She's mad about him," thought Toni forlornly, deciding she would slip quickly to her dressing room, change and be off.

As [illegible] and Harriet made their way to the dance floor, a young man at the table asked Toni to dance. She declined, and rose to leave.

As she did so she was trembling, aware that Brock Mi[illegible]bank stood beside her, swaying [illegible] hand [illegible] her arm [illegible].

"Thish, Toni, is what you might call an unexshpected pleashuh." He grinned. "You, in New York, 'n' all dolled up like a plush horsh."

She [illegible].

The young man who had asked her to dance [illegible] whispered to Toni: "Do you know this fellow? Or shall I get rid of him?"

Brock [illegible] off. With the swift change of mood of the intoxicated, he became nasty, [illegible].

"I'll thank you to mind your own bushinesh. How dare you in'fere with ol' frien' of mine! Come, Toni, I wanna talk to you. Come 'way from this blighter—all the blighters—" His grip on her arm became viselike.

"I'm tired. I'm going home," she said, hoping to avoid a scene.

"Home? Thash a good word! You and I would've had a home together, if it washn't for Jessica—blast her!"

"Hush!" She broke sharply, because of [illegible] fear. If [illegible] was imminent. [illegible] him away from the table, away from the [illegible] young man who was a friend of Harriet Brewster.

With a [illegible] of the eyebrows indicating that she herself would take care of this old acquaintance who had imbibed too freely, she guided Brock to the narrow passage behind the orchestra, fortunately deserted at the moment.

"What we doing here? Wanna go back and dance with you, Toni. But f'rsht of all, a kiss!"

A kiss? The final insult.

With her free arm she pushed him so violently he staggered against the wall.

"How dare you speak to me?" The cry came from her heart. [illegible] to pretend she was not Toni Goddard. Drunk as he was, he had recognized her.

A NEW PROBLEM

"Why shouldn't I shpeak to you, considering what we were to each other?" He was blinking at her resentfully.

"Then not here. Wait for me. We'll talk outside."

She raced up the stairs to her dressing room. Was conscious that his stumbling step were following her.

Should she send for Niklas?

She wondered. Have him forcibly put out?

But a [illegible] would [illegible] her prestige. More, the appearance of Brock would convince the night club owner that she had lied about having no acquaintances in the city.

"Honey, if you'll wait just a minute I'll be with you, and we'll talk and dance till dawn! But not here! I'm a professional, see?" Her voice, her look caressed him. For a swift second her hand touched his cheek.

If we go back to the floor I'll be compelled to dance with the others. It's my job to be agreeable to everybody. And so we'll sneak out together—"

"WE'LL MAKE UP"

A burning look of anticipation came into his befuddled eyes. He [illegible]: "You'll come to my hotel, Toni? You promise? We'll make up—we'll forget what happened? Tonight we'll be together."

Keep the [illegible] out of her voice. [illegible] him. Placate him. "Where's Jessica?" she asked.

"Forget about Jessica. She's in Reno, divorcing me, and I'm darn glad of it."

* * *

It was [illegible] on the evening [illegible] Brock M[illegible]bank's discovery of the Chateau de la M[illegible] [illegible] disturbed, was eating an early dinner at a table set behind a screen of palms at one side of the orchestra dais.

The [illegible] open at the cocktail hour. Now was the time when the club opened its doors to members.

Would Brock appear tonight?—she wondered.

By a ruse of promising everything, or seeming to do so—she had coaxed him out of the club and [illegible] his hotel at three a. m. and with the assistance of a bellhop had got him to bed, and [illegible] quiet inn at [illegible].

[illegible] to seen.

She had [illegible] after dawn streaked the December sky.

Why [illegible] ghost [illegible] wretched memories? Hadn't she worked hard? [illegible]

HE'D RUIN HER!

It was [illegible] Brock M[illegible]bank had [illegible] break [illegible] was nothing [illegible] fragile [illegible] that would vanish at a touch.

It was not she reflected Brock sober she was afraid of [illegible] drinking Brock.

And whatever had happened between him and Jessica had set him drinking excessively. Hadn't the desk clerk told her he had "been on a bender" for the past week?

[illegible] the thought of quitting [illegible].

That would [illegible] the [illegible]. For the easiest way out of the [illegible].

But she [illegible].

And [illegible] mean [illegible] of G. Halstead Fiagg. That frightened her.

On the other hand, if Brock exposed her, [illegible] she [illegible] Guy's friendship anyway."

HARRY INSISTS WOMENFOLK STAY IN

CHAPTER 378

THERE WAS something arresting in Harry Underwood's tone as he said that and Dick meant to lay down one little law for Lillian and me, and especially for Mother Graham, before they started for the city, something which made both his wife and me look attentively at him.

"All right, we'll bite, Mr. Bones," Lillian laughed. "What is this law?"

"That neither you nor Madge go out of the farm yard today without one of the guards escorting you, and that Mother Graham does not go out of the yard at all."

"Nice job you've set us in that last [illegible]," his wife retorted. "And if we have to go out of the farm yard today, which I trust devoutly we won't, how are we going to explain the accompanying guards to Mother Graham?"

"That's part of your assignment," he retorted with a provoking grin. "See that you don't stub your toe on it."

HARRY TAKES WHEEL

"I'm wide awake now," Harry announced, grinning broadly. "I have my second wind. So I'll just take first trick at this wheel and let my little palsy walsy here fall into the arms of Morpheus. I hope you all appreciate my classical references."

"I could do without your yap[illegible]," Dicky informed him, "[illegible] classical or otherwise. But your offer to take the first trick of driving is as sweet music unto mine ears. Just watch me get set. But remember: At 100 miles or before if you get sleepy, you kick me awake."

"Nothing would give me great[illegible] [illegible] after that [illegible] of you about my conversation. And the sooner you get to sleep and [illegible] off yours, the better I'll be pleased."

[illegible] immediately [illegible] ed [illegible] of the sedan, which the men had taken so that one could sleep while the other [illegible] under his head the small couch pillows which we always carry in the car [illegible] to [illegible] on the back of the front seat, tossed it at his feet and grinned at me.

"No, darling," Lillian said, shaking her head. "[illegible] the question before [illegible]. They never will grow up, either of them. Come on! Let's go back to the living room and coax Mother Graham into a good [illegible] [illegible]. Then we can do up to [illegible] [illegible] for one of our old confabs before [illegible]."

"After [illegible]," I amended sternly, [illegible] only answer was a noncommittal shrug which might mean anything or nothing and I followed her back to the living room with the conviction that she was in one of her [illegible] moods when it is almost [illegible].

We [illegible] Mother Graham [illegible] were [illegible] afghan [illegible] which she [illegible] making for Ma[illegible].

For Genuine Charm

MORE fun for Jean since she turned "nerves" into charm

Headaches, nervous indigestion, sleeplessness no longer torture and exhaust her. No snappish, disagreeable manner mars her friendships. Now with her nerves under control, her sensitive, high-spirited nature makes her attractive as can be.

A famous physician-psychologist advised her that "nerves" and the physical disturbances they cause often come from a secret fear of meeting difficult situations. How many times, Jean recalled, she'd had a nervous attack just when she most needed all the courage and poise she could muster.

Under this doctor's orders she began re-educating her "nerves." She overcame the inaction and indecision that kept her nervous energy shutting inwardly instead of flowing out, simply by taking some definite action whenever a nerve attack threatened. Instead of "flying off the handle" she turned to some creative task such as baking cookies or gardening. She learned to relax, too, at rest time.

Day by day she soothed her jagged nerves, got relief from the physical disturbances they cause, became the alert, responsive, well-adjusted sort of person every one adores.

Her physician will advise you, too, in our 40-page booklet, HOW TO AVOID AND OVERCOME NERVOUS TROUBLES. Practical help in conquering worry, irritability, restlessness, insomnia, quick fatigue, dizziness, and other signs of a mistreated nervous system.

TREAT FAMILY TO OLD-FASHIONED ICE CREAM

Or Cool Sherbets

By MARTHA LEE

DO YOU ever feel a hankering for the kind of old-fashioned ice cream that grandmother used to make?

You recall the kind—where you licked the dasher and ate from cereal dishes with generous seconds at hand.

Perhaps that is just what you have been wanting these dog days. It's well to remember that the new fashioned ice cream freezers freeze this same kind of old-fashioned ice cream in a shorter time than in former days.

In case you have forgotten the important points in ice cream making, we'll refresh your memory before giving recipes for [illegible] old favorite.

IMPORTANT POINTS IN ICE CREAM MAKING

Ice cream [illegible] pre-cooled before [illegible] freezer. [illegible]

[illegible]

Ice cream [illegible]

[illegible] mixture.

AMERICAN VANILLA ICE CREAM

- 2 cups scalded milk
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 egg.
- 1 cup sugar.
- Few grains salt
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 quart thin cream

Scald the milk, reserving one-half cup. Add the cornstarch which has been thoroughly mixed with the sugar and salt and cook [illegible] minutes. Beat the egg and add [illegible] cup of cold milk. Add to the [illegible] mixture and cook for from three to five minutes longer or [illegible] mixture coats the spoon. Remove from the fire, strain and [illegible]. Add the cream and [illegible] freeze. If desired, two eggs [illegible] [illegible] instead of the one egg. [illegible]

PINEAPPLE MILK SHERBET

- 1 cup crushed pineapple
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 pint milk
- [illegible] cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract

Combine crushed pineapple and [illegible]. [illegible] add [illegible] dissolved [illegible] cold water for [illegible]

[illegible] before serving.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk (scalded)
- 2 eggs (beaten)
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate melted
- [illegible] teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] to dummy [illegible] dummy's remaining [illegible]. The spade [illegible] followed [illegible] the ace of hearts [illegible] were laid down. West [illegible] followed [illegible] hearts on the ace and the [illegible] on the next round.

At the time the second heart was led, both declarer and dummy were out of clubs. From the bidding, from the fact that only two rounds of trumps had been drawn and the [illegible] that [illegible] had [illegible] West could be sure that East was [illegible] out of trumps.

[illegible] spade [illegible] for the defenders [illegible] would be the limit; therefore, two diamond tricks would be necessary to defeat the contract.

If declarer had started with the ace and queen of hearts [illegible] he would have attempted a heart finesse since he could not have known where the king lay. Thus, the failure to try such a finesse was eloquent proof that [illegible] did not hold the heart queen.

The danger was [illegible] after one heart had had [illegible] queen [illegible] and won [illegible] on [illegible]. The play of [illegible] ace was further warning, if West had only had the vision to interpret it.

But, as I said originally, West was a lady with a strong bargain instinct, and the thought of expending the king on a trick that could be won with the jack was a bit too much for her, I suppose.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

I wish I knew what this young Englishman, Vaughan Wilkins had in mind in writing his new novel "And So—Victoria" (Macmillan), recently a big success in England and only just republished in America. Maybe he had nothing in mind except writing an interesting historical yarn of England a hundred years ago.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Maybe he is just capitalizing on the current public interest in the House of Windsor and the forbears of the present duke and the present king, but I have a feeling that behind it all there may be more of a purpose.

The story reminds me a [illegible] of "Anthony Adverse," although it is only half as long. But it is laid at about the same period; its youthful hero, Christopher, has not a little of the same dubious and ambiguous atmosphere connected with his birth and is mixed up with the great ones of this earth as Anthony was, even comes to America briefly as Anthony did.

Revealing Bad Side Of Early Royalty

But what essentially this book deals with and very effectively is the utter and complete rottenness of the Hanoverians and Brunswickers who preceded Victoria on the throne.

The point of the whole thing lies in the historical fact that of all the ten or twelve children of the "old, bad, mad, blind, dying king," as Shelley put it, who was George III, not a single one of them had a legitimate heir except the Duke of Kent. His child was Victoria.

George IV was childless in spite of his being a bigamist. His brother, William IV had a dozen children by a morganatic marriage. Victoria, an only child, was the only possible heir to the throne.

In the background lurked the unspeakable Duke of Cumberland in whose way little Vicky stood, against whom he plotted unsuccessfully. The novel is the story of the plot to keep Victoria from the throne.

The instrument used by Cumberland is a little boy, Christopher, the hero of the story, himself son of the dead Princess Amelia, and who grows up to learn so much about the worthlessness, debauchery and treachery of his entire family that he renounces it, takes another name and at the end risks his life to foil Cumberland's plots and seat Victoria on the throne.

Suspects Good Deal Of Fact in This Fiction

I do not know how historical it is although I suspect that in the vast muck heap of century-old memoirs and letters and reminiscences there is probably a good deal of fact that went into this fiction.

The point of the book, of course, is that with the accession of Victoria the Good and her marriage to the irreproachable Albert, English royal history turned a corner and went respectable.

Edward VII may have been a bit of a throwback and so perhaps was Edward VIII, the present Duke of Windsor, but George V and the present George VI are definitely in the Victorian tradition.

Perhaps that is what the novel is trying to say, that after all there is a little more of the old Hanoverian blood in David than is quite safe for England under present conditions and that George may not be so fascinating but that England feels safer with him.

It really is fascinating reading—England under George IV and William IV up to the very eve of Victoria's accession one hundred years ago this year.

A great deal of the Charles Dickens influence is seen, particularly in the vivid and horrible episodes of the children kidnaped to be sold to factories operating on child labor, an exceptionally strongly written section reminding the reader of Oliver Twist and Smike at Mr. Squeers school and the early Dickens generally.

Wonders What Present Title Bearers Think

The vignette of the pocket-handkerchief Grand Duchy in Germany is as much Thackeray as the English pictures are Dickens. It is Pumpernickel all over again. Not to forget the eccentric English milord who invents a kind of road engine that runs by coal, the great-granddaddy of the automobile, reminding one of any number of characters described in Magoun and Hodgkins' book about engineering called "Power" (Little, Brown).

It is an exciting book, but I can't help wondering a little what the present Duke of Kent thinks about it, and all the rest of the legitimate successors of the old rips whose titles they now bear.

Here are three more New England girls who believe their legs are comparable to those of Marlene Dietrich's—girls who have sent in their photos in the "Legs Like Dietrich's" contest, in competition for cash prizes offered by the Boston Evening American, in conjunction with the Keith Memorial Theater, to which Marlene Dietrich's newest screen hit, "Knights Without Armor," comes tomorrow. At upper left is Dorothy Curtis Lord of Clifton street, Belmont; at upper right, an amateur photographer's snapshot of Miss Emilie Elmstrom of Harrison street, Medford, and below, Irene White of Prescott street, East Boston. All are in running for prizes, $25, first; $10, second, and three $5 prizes.

Everett City Hall Ransacked

B[illegible] broke [illegible] Everett's city hall during the night and ransacked several offices but as far as police have been able to determine [illegible] nothing of any value was taken.

A window in the assessors office was forced and then the office of City Collector Emil Lundgren entered.

Drawers and desks were jimmied open there, but all the cash was in a vault behind a grilled partition.

The prowlers went through a number of other offices, upsetting things and emptying drawers. Inspector Edward J. Dunn said a number of fingerprints had been left by the thieves.

Dies of Excitement After Auto Crash

[illegible] died today of a heart attack [illegible] by excitement experienced during an automobile accident.

[illegible] was brought home by a passing motorist, who saw the crash, police said. Telling his wife of the accident, he went upstairs and suffered the heart seizure a few minutes later. Medical Examiner Timothy O'Leary determined the cause of death.

Quartet in Stolen Georgia Car Held

Three Georgia youths and a Boston youth were arrested today while driving a car reported stolen in Atlanta, Ga.

The four were taken in the South End.

Allegedly admitting that they stole the car in Atlanta, the youths were held as suspicious persons.

Fugitive Callahan to Be Brought Here

Steps toward [illegible] A. Callahan, 32, who escaped from East Cambridge Jail 11 months ago were taken today by Special Sheriff William Stiles of Middlesex County and Assistant District Attorney William G. Andrew.

Papers for return of the fugitive, now behind bars again in the Bergen County Jail, Hackensack, N. J., were drawn up and Sergeant-Inspectors Edward J. Brennan of Cambridge and Arthur Tiernan of Boston will go to New Jersey after him.

Trapped last night upon information furnished by a "tipster," Callahan was arrested at Fairview, N. J., for putting slugs in a telephone box.

Callahan, once a member of the notorious Gustin gang of South Boston, has a long police record.

HUSBAND TO PRESIDE

[illegible] chief bank examiner [illegible]

The purpose of the examinations, Commissioner Husband told a Boston Evening American reporter, is to reclassify all 100 male employes in the department. Many complaints have come to me from junior bank examiners that although they have been in the department many years and have been doing the work of senior examiners, they have not been advanced and are getting less pay than they are entitled to.

"I had to give the examinations at this time because it would give the least amount of trouble to the banks.

JUSTICE TO MEN

"The examinations, over which I will personally preside, will relate to savings banks, trust companies, cooperative banks and credit unions. This is the first time that such examinations have been held by the department, but I feel that in justice to the men who have complained that it is the proper thing to do. If inequalities exist, as charged, they will be corrected by these examinations.

"Whether any examiners are holding their positions through political influence or favoritism I do not know, but I do know that if I wanted to take a man off the street and make him an examiner I could do so without regard for his qualifications.

"The responsibility for such an act would be entirely mine. I am making no charges of either political influence or favoritism. I am merely desirous of taking an inventory of the personnel because of the numerous complaints that have come to me. I feel it is the fair thing to do."

He also said that the examinations will not extend to persons employed in connection with closed banks. He denies rumors that bonds or other collateral of closed banks is missing.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Trading air waves for sea waves, Junior Birdmen and their parents and adult friends will throng Long Wharf before 10 a. m. Friday when they will embark on the "S. S. Steel Pier" all set to enjoy the most popular outing on the Boston American Wing's summer calendar.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
(Membership open to all boys and girls 10 to 21)

I wish to join the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a dime (well wrapped) for my gold wings and other membership materials.

Print name ____________________

Street address ____________________

City ____________________ State ____________________

My Age Is Now ____________ (Give Your CORRECT Age)

Mail to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer St., Boston, Mass.

They will steam to Provincetown and back, reaching Boston again about 6 or 7 p. m. Fares will be reduced for Junior Birdmen to 50 cents the round trip and for their parents and adult friends to $1.50 each.

Here are important instructions for all who go on the cruise.

To get on the trip for the 50-cent rate, all Birdmen and Birdwomen MUST wear their wing-pins. To get their tickets they must report to a special ticket window at the pier over which there will be a sign reading "Get Junior Birdmen Tickets Here."

AND, members must buy their parents' tickets at the same window. The parents must not approach the window to get tickets themselves.

The only other obligation of all for the day is to enjoy the cruise!

And that won't be hard!

Those who wish to rest or talk will choose shady or sunny sides of the ship to suit themselves. Passing before them will be the storied islands and coastline, points of interest of which will be indicated over the broadcasting system.

Deck games and dancing will be enjoyed. Picnic lunches may be brought, purchased in the ship's cafeteria or eaten at one of the Provincetown tearooms.

Five winners of Ace bars in the recent Junior Birdmen outdoor model plane wing championships will be guests on the cruise and will be honored at a special dinner aboard the "Steel Pier" at which time they will receive their bars.

Two hours in Provincetown may be crammed with sight-seeing, swimming, window shopping or bicycling.

Approaching the dock of this town, passengers are excited by the enthusiastic greeting usually afforded them.

Speed boats zoom in circles around them, their occupants waving and shouting, little boats toot their whistles and dockhands spring to activity to secure the Steel Pier.

Balloons, watches, animated toys and sweetmeats are offered by picturesque merchants, and before leaving the long pier, Junior Birdmen and their friends will linger to watch the small tanned boys diving for coins in deep water.

Sight-seeing busses are plentiful but most visitors choose to use "shank's mare" and linger where they will behind a smocked artist practicing his art, beside a fishing boat, a store window or atop a hill where the view is almost breath-taking.

Those who took the cruise last year will be anxious to see these sights again and "do" some they missed. Those who have never been to Provincetown will have an enviable "first time" ahead of them.

HORNSBY In Line for O'NEIL'S JOB

[illegible]

Is Rogers Hornsby making a business trip to Cleveland soon? . . . Barney Ross probably will top the fight card Mike Jacobs is putting on in Miami next winter. . . . The feud between Patty Berg and Bea Barrett, Minneapolis and St. Paul golf stars, is like Barney Ross and Winchell's and Mike Jacobs and Jimmy Johnston's. . . . Between tourneys they're pals and frequently practice together. . . . Our nomination for the manager who has done the best job of bringing out a fighter the last year is Eddie Meade, pilot of Henry Armstrong. . . . Because several American Association umpires have been Kayoed by the heat this season, a bowl of salt is placed in their dressing room in Toledo daily.

[illegible]

We've said it before and repeat it now: Duke will have one swell football team this year—and may beat Pittsburgh. . . . George Raft, who will fly here to try to sign Babe Ruth as manager of the Hollywood Coast League club, will not get to first base. . . . It's the majors or nothing for the old Bambino, and we don't blame him.

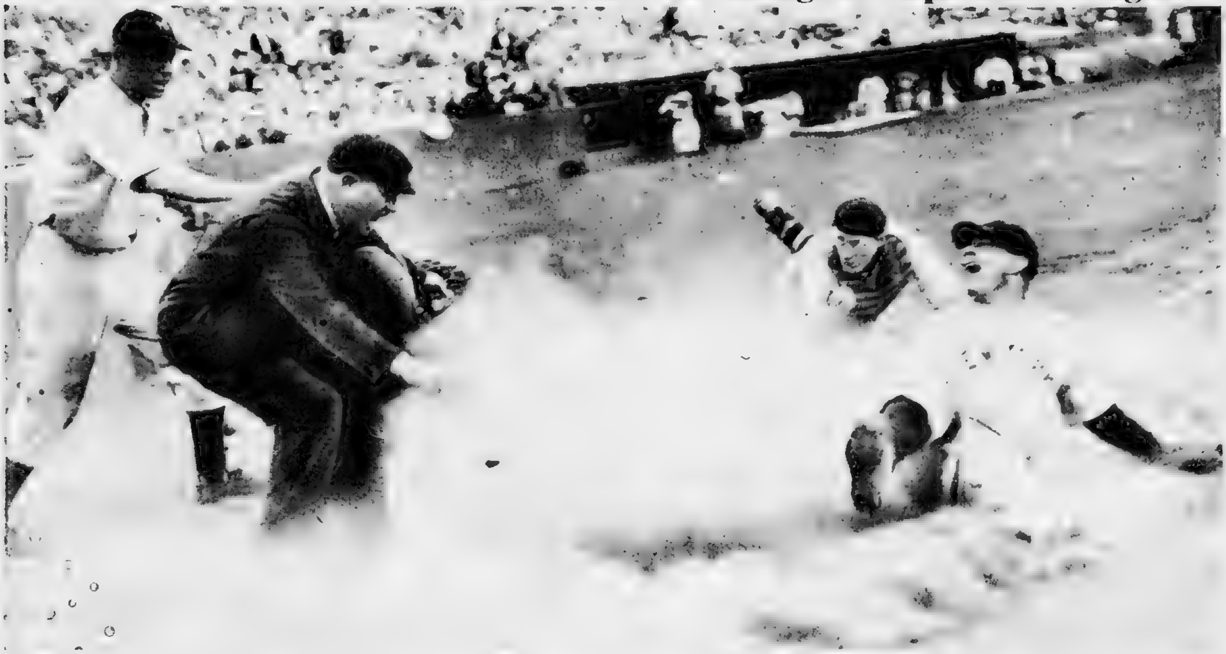
HARRIDGE, UMPIRES ON SPOT

Cronin Roars---Crowd Jeers---Kolls Takes Advantage of Umpirical Prerogative



Here's the play that started the trouble. Selkirk is shown sliding into the plate, and Desautels has the ball in his hand. Umpire Kolls is over the play, and Joe DiMaggio is an interested spectator. It happened in the 14th inning and was very close. Kolls ruled Selkirk safe. Then the fun started. Mr. Kolls heard himself called several things by the Messrs. Cronin and Bing Miller that he never was called before.

AUSTEN LAKE

Yankees Hand Red Sox Double Dose Before Record Week-Day Crowd

AUSTEN LAKE

THE RED SOX BOGGED DOWN IN THE slough of despond, toppled off the crags of despair and quaffed the poison cup. Which is a manner of saying that they lost. The Yankees stormed the parapet of glory, scaled the heights of bliss and all that sort of sport page dialect. Which is a way of saying that they won.

Yes, the Red Sox lost a double-header by typical Yankee coercion. The scores were 8 to 5 and 10 to 4, though the first conflict was so close that the employes had to work overtime to reach a decision which, when it came, witnessed the grim old spector of rowdyism baring its evil fangs and gnashing them menacingly at the solemn dignity of the national pastime.

Fun flared up in the 10th inning of the first contest when Jake Powell, the petulant outfielder of the Yankees, got trapped in a rundown between third base and home plate, and just as he was tagged, drove his shoulder into Pinky Higgins in a belligerent way. It was Pinky's fight, but before he could claim it Joe Cronin stole it and moved on Powell with that in the swing of his arms and shoulders which suggested a little clean, and manly mayhem. But while both boys were cranking up their Sunday punches, a lot of pacifists stepped in and induced the two fight hogs to go away.

So things moved along toward the 14th inning, with both sides mumbling and growling and the rain splashing down in quick gusts between intervals of bright sunshine and flickers of heat lightning dancing up from the murky horizon. And though the Red Sox had passengers on the sacks several times they muffed their scoring opportunities and forced Jack Wilson to go on [illegible] arm out by the roots.

Cronin Goes Berserk

WHEN THE YANKEES WERE AT BAT in the fourteenth the big upheaval came. Powell scored one run on a single by George Selkirk, who was ghost hitting for Johnny Murphy. And then Red Rolfe, the old Dartmouth scholar, punched out a double which brought Henrich in and Selkirk racing around third and sliding in a

NICE WORK, MR. KOLLS

The Desautels banishment was one of the most unreasonable decisions ever handed down by an arbiter and makes one wonder how long the American League will continue to employ umpires who show such poor judgment as did Kolls in this case.

[illegible]

There can be no excuse for Kolls' action. Only if he were struck by Desautels would he be justified in chasing him at that time.

What is a player supposed to do when he sees a 14-inning game slipping from the grasp of his side and [illegible] the "ump" has missed one? [illegible] "Gee, that's a tough break."

When baseball reaches that stage [illegible] it will be time to close the gates.

If President Will Harridge, who yesterday issued a daffy order that hereafter umpires can't be over-ruled even by brother umps who know them wrong, doesn't get more umpires and fewer actors, he'll be out with a lot of his prima donna boys in blue.

Feller Himself

Cleveland, Aug. 12 (UP).—Young Bob Feller served notice he could be definitely counted upon to win his share of games this season as the Indians took both ends of a twin bill from the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2 and 7 to 2. Feller scattered seven St. Louis safeties in the opener and whiffed six men to register his third win of the season.

Favorites Lose

Waterville, Me., Aug. 12 (AP).—Constance Hodin of the Penobscot Valley Country Club, Bangor, and Mrs. Gladys Blaisdell of the Waterville Country Club, favorites in the Maine's women's golf championship, were defeated in quarter-final rounds here.

Allan Wilson Returns Home Tomorrow | Col. Donovan Leaves Florida Track

By JACK CONWAY

ALLAN WILSON postcards from Genoa, Italy, that he will be back in Boston tomorrow following a tour of Europe . . . Allan says he had an audience with the Pope while visiting Vatican City . . . Johnny Rogers, formerly of Boston, who more recently has been managing a stable of boxers in California, is New York bound from England, where some of his mitt flingers saw action . . . Johnny says Englishmen figure Tommy Farr has a chance to win over Joe Louis in their world's heavyweight championship bout at the Yankee Stadium, New York, on August 26.

Mr. Boston.

Jack Sharkey forgot boxing long enough to journey to Fenway Park to see the Sox-Yankees double-header . . . Boston banker offered $80 to anybody who could get him eight reserved seats for yesterday's twin bill, but couldn't get the pasteboards . . . Eddie Collins, Hy Mason, Phil Troy, et al did a swell job in keeping tickets for the Sox-Yankee series out of the hands of speculators . . . If the series had been staged in New York, the ticket agencies would have made a fortune . . . At Fenway Park it was a case of first come first served, and nobody was permitted to buy a block of tickets.

Wynne Sneck, who played on the Carlisle football team that pulled the hidden ball trick on Harvard, will be one of the performers in the rodeo which opens at Suffolk Downs on Monday . . . A Carlisle player by the name of Dillon (probably a member of one of the ancient Irish tribes) came out of a [illegible] following the reception of the ball following a kickoff with the [illegible] under the back part of his jersey . . . There was [illegible] on the lower part of the jersey . . . Big [illegible] ran the length of the field for a touchdown.

He [illegible] this was [illegible] Percy Haughton [illegible] showed Warner a [illegible] football that he planned to use in the game . . . Percy said there was not anything in the rules barring a Crimson football . . . Warner chuckled and agreed not to have his players wear the jerseys with the football painted on them if Haughton would forget about using a Crimson pigskin . . . This was done.

Russ Murray at Marshfield Fair

RUSS MURRAY will again be [illegible] manager of the horse racing end of the program at the Marshfield Fair which opens on Aug. 23 and runs for six days . . . [illegible] the Marshfield Fair last summer and for the [illegible] years the [illegible] . . . Russ will be associated with Lou Smith in his new racing [illegible] at Havana, Cuba . . . There will be horse racing in the afternoon and dog racing at night as well as a gambling Casino where the boys and girls can play roulette between races . . . Col. [illegible] to make a play for some of the [illegible] business [illegible] now goes to Florida.

Col. Eddie Donovan, who used to give the Dorchester [illegible], has withdrawn from the group planning a [illegible] horse track at Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Horse racing was defeated by the people of the county where Fort Lauderdale is located by a [illegible] vote . . . Col. Donovan is a pal of Al Smith's and has made a fortune in the stock brokerage business in New York . . . The former Dorchester boy is a graduate of Georgetown and served with the colors in the World War.

LONG Racing Season FOR FLORIDA

By The Associated Press

It is expected that the racing season in Florida this winter will open about December 20 and continue through April 9 with Tropical Park holding the first meeting which should last until the middle of January. Hialeah will be next, to continue until the second week in March, and then Tropical will take up again. This will give Florida one of its longest racing seasons.

Forecasts of Florida tracks dates and purses have not included the new track being erected in Hollywood, Fla.

[illegible]

Horsemen already are making application for stable room at the Dade County track and indications point to a well attended meeting.

The racing strip at Saratoga has been off for the past two days. A heavy rain slowed the track although high winds helped to dry it somewhat. Many regulars at the Spa left temporarily for Goshen [illegible] and attendance Tuesday and Wednesday was low.

swirl of dust. The ball seemed to reach Desautels, the Red Sox catcher, in plenty of time and he seemed to nick Selkirk in the region of his breeches. But Umpire Lou Kolls, who was supervising the play, motioned with the flat of his hands that the man was safe. There were two out at the time and the decision was of the greatest consequence.

Well, land sakes! Joe Cronin, the Red Sox manager, who has always been [illegible] a [illegible] and [illegible] cuffs his hat to the lines and says "If you please" and "I'm happy to meet you," came shrieking and [illegible] swearing such swears as you will never find in any family newspaper, and behind him, screaming and swearing, came Bing Miller, Roger Cramer and several other wage earners who considered themselves fair hands in [illegible], journeyman cussing.

Bing Miller lurked around the outskirts quite a spell before he could break through Cronin's service, and was just beginning to swing off into space when Cronin caught his second wind and with a cry, "Yes, and furthermore," continued his oration. For reference I advise you to scan the adjoining illustrations on the drama to get the full flavor of Cronin's fury, which was something truly beautiful to see.

Cal Hubbard Takes a Hand

SO FINALLY BING, THE COACH, SAID rather [illegible]: "I know me some words which you boys never heard, an' won't you hush a moment and let a man swear than can swear."

"Did you ever hear this one?" asked Desautels, the catcher, who had been bouncing up and down outside the circle, trying to insert a remark, "I learned this one from a man who used to mend umbrellas in our town."

Desautels backed off and began waving his arms like he was about to bust Mr. Kolls right on the bridge of the nose. Seeing which, Cal Hubbard, the old college athletic hobo and ex-professional player who once fought the entire Pittsburgh team, walked briskly in from first base.

"Surely," he said, "you will count old Cal in on this thing, if there is going to be any roughhouse. I do not wish to intrude on another gent's fight, but if you can spare any, please deal me a hand."

At the approach of Mr. Hubbard, who has the reputation for being a useful man in a riot, Desautels sneaked the umbrella man's remark in quick right under Mr. Kolls' left ear, and the umpire [illegible] beckoned him out of the ball game.

* * *

Foxx Goes Behind the Bat

Moe Berg, the only other existing Red Sox catcher, had been removed a short time before with complications that were diagnosed as a busted lip, a case of watered knee and an unhinged rib, so Desautels refused to believe that any umpire would have the effrontery to remove him when there was nobody else on the club whose label read "catcher." So when Mr. Kolls waved him out Desautels waved back defiantly.

Well, it looked as though they would have to call Commissioner of Police Joe Timilty out of the press box to remove Red, or else detail Hubbard to knock him limp for easier ejection. But finally he decided to give himself up and walked off, tossing his mask at the feet of the umpire as his last gesture of derision.

So, when harmony was restored out came Jimmy Foxx, the first baseman, in the catching upholstery and looking like an overstuffed sofa, to finish the rest of the inning. Though it must be nigh onto a hundred years since Jimmy caught his last ball game.

There was, of course, much more to the game than that, including the home runs by Joe DiMaggio and those, on successive pitches, in the seventh inning by Eric McNair and Ben Chapman. In fact, the most startling moment of the ball game was when the Yankees had the contest all won by 4 to 3 with two out and Skee Melillo on second and Roger Cramer lifted a harmless pop fly over the Yankee second baseman's head. It was a simple pop-up of a dime-a-dozen type and the crowd started to move toward the refreshment booths for a crust and a bottle, when Tony Lazzeri somehow lost the ball in the sun and let it plop down at his feet.

So, though Melillo scored and the game went into extra innings, the Red Sox were merely living on borrowed time and, though it would have been a nice game to win before the 36 thousand paid admissions, the little gods of luck were merely yanking back their earlier gift and the Sox were snowed under by one of the greatest hitting aggregations of this or any other time. Selah!

Raft Wants Ruth To Pilot Coast League Team

Hollywood, Aug. 12 (AP)—George Raft [illegible] said to [illegible] for a [illegible] Babe Ruth to [illegible] Pacific Coast League [illegible] 1938.

Raft, declining to disclose his [illegible], said he hoped to obtain [illegible] the Oakland or San Francisco [illegible] franchise to Hollywood.

"I feel that Babe Ruth is still the biggest man in baseball," Raft said.

"If the negotiations progress as I expect, I will leave by plane next week for the East to confer with Ruth and with Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

"My personal preference is for the Oakland franchise because of the Yankees connection with it."

The ace handicapper came up with five winners at the mid-week meeting.

He started with Lena Lee, which paid $11 in the first race.

Came a halt until the sixth, and Cohen started again. His Bumped Off won easily to pay $7.20, and he followed in the seventh with Venus D, which returned $10. Judicial made it three in a row and a $7 payoff. Snow Shoes, Cohen's best bet, took the ninth for the fourth straight win and paid $3.20.

Cohen's Night Pink Special, Mildred Breeze, went off at 6 to 1. After leading all the way it was just nipped at the wire by Public Enemy.

DYKES STILL BUILDING

By WARRREN BROWN

Chicago, Aug. 12 (US)—I seem to detect an air of grumpiness about the war correspondents who have been following the White Sox on their travels.

Apparently the boys have suffered greatly and I know of at least one report which came back to the home office that was so blazing it practically consumed the paper on which it was written, with the result that it was impossible to present it in print at all.

It all comes from setting an objective too far ahead for the amount of munitions Gen. Jimmy Dykes and his gallant army are carrying.

Boys, you haven't stopped to consider a few things that enter into baseball as it is played in the American League nowadays.

Gen. Dykes has been campaigning with the White Sox for a bit more than three seasons. That is to say, he has been in charge for two full seasons before this and part of the 1934 season.

In his first full season in command Dykes brought the White Sox from eighth place to fifth.

In his second he got the White Sox into third place by a photo finish.

SLUMPED IN EAST

Even allowing for the disaster which overtook them in the East and caused so much anguish to the war correspondents, the Sox will have to be much worse for the balance of the season than they have shown signs of being at any time this year to fail to surpass their 1936 record.

They can tie that record by winning but 23 while losing 30 of their remaining games.

And they are certainly not going to play that sort of baseball.

I'd be willing to hazard a guess that the Sox finish the season closer to the 90 game winning mark than they have been since 1919 when they won a pennant with 88 victories.

In any event the Sox haven't done a thing this year to cause me to back up from an opinion hazarded in the spring that they were the most improved club in the American League. And it wasn't much of a hazard, at that.

The trouble with the war correspondents and with the considerable following of the White Sox, is that they saw a pennant in sight too soon.

Because that fleeting glimpse is gone there is no reason to become peeved about it.

GATE ATTRACTION

Over the season the Sox have played more interesting baseball and have drawn better crowds than at any time since the misfortune of 1919 and 1920.

The Sox, as I see them, do not need alibis or explanations in their showing this year. They have done all right.

At the present time they are engaged in a three-cornered warfare for second place.

If they make it, it means another advance for Gen. Dykes and his troops.

If they don't they'll still be able to look back on a season which was a decided improvement over all but one of those that have followed the year 1920, when it became necessary for "the good of baseball, to wreck a team that was so good it doggone near won when several members of it were trying to lose.

English Fighter A Rough, Tough Opponent

SPORT WRITERS' LEGEND RICH

By BOB CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 12 (US)—Here's how Tommy Farr fights: He keeps his chin and his hands low, with his "button" tucked in behind his thick left shoulder. He's pretty fast for a big thick fellow, and more than normally shrewd.

His forte seems to be his heart—which is a pretty good thing to have in a fight against Louis—and his ability to irritate a foe. He has a left jab that would wring a squeal of fretful wrath from a wooden Indian.

Sometimes he pushes it at you, like a man ramming an old blunderbuss; other times he brings it up from the level of his left knee with a stiff-armed motion which carries more weight than you'd expect. The left is never still, never in the hammock in which he carries his somewhat lukewarm right.

BUTTS MAX BAER

He's got a lot of the bar-room fighter in him. There's a pretty good possibility that he'll butt Louis, who is probably the cleanest fighter we've ever had in the ring. Or step all over him and push him around like a guy in the throes of an alley frisk.

The long jagged scar which Farr opened over the eye of Max Baer came from a butt, not a punch, several of our London spies have told us. He lost the round for it, but it crippled Baer for the rest of the fight, particularly after the various blood-stopping preservatives began to sink into his eye.

Louis has had the amazing record of never being cut in the ring. His face skin seems able to resist any kind of a wallop without splitting. The only claret that has leaked out of his big, broad bill came forth in the Pastor and Braddock fights. Schmeling knocked one side of his head out of shape, but couldn't cut him. Our friendly advice to Farr is to soak his noggin in brine before attempting to billy-goat the colored champion.

Jefferson Davis Dickson, Jr., suh, is fresh back from Natchez, Miss., the native heath to which he returns every so often from that sweet Paris, where he is the No. 1 sports promoter. M. Dickson is youngish, darkish, given to quick enthusiasms and speaks French with a Southern accent. He had some latest information on his man, Marcel Thil, the world's heavyweight champion of France, who set sail for America yesterday on the Normandie.

"This is a born fighter," says M. Dickson, coining an interesting phrase. "He is the strongest middleweight who evah lived, and he's all fighter—two cauliflower ears, a good punch and he knows every trick, suh. He's liable to frighten that Apostoli right out of the ring. Y'see, he's as bald as an egg, but he's got thick matted hair all over his chest and shoulders and back. And he's pretty mean.

"He learned to fight in the French navy, when he was serving his conscription. Doesn't speak a word of English, and he's bringing his wife over to cook for him while he's in this country. And don't believe them stories about him laying down and hollering foul when Lou Brouillard hits him on the chin; Brouillard really fouled both times, but of a certainment, suh!"

The vicissitudes of promoting sports in that dear Paris are many, but M. Dickson is up to them. He's been there since 1923, and had ample opportunity to study the customers at close range.

"They want a murder for their two sous," M. Dickson philosophizes.

He had learned, however, how to capitalize on their Gaellic wrath. He needed some new seats and other trapping in his French Madison Square Garden some time back, but didn't know quite how to get them.

"So what happens but some Portuguese beat our rassling champion, Henri DeGlane, and the customers simply tore up my joint. Fortunately it was insured," shrugged M. Dickson with a blissful sigh.

We met one of the legendary characters of the sports writing game the other day, Mr. Tom Rice, LL.D., who bore witness at the ball yards, hoss parks and fight pits for 30 years before becoming a member of the New York State crime commission.

A Brooklyn paper sent Mr. Rice to the Dempsey-Willard fight in Toledo with strict orders to steer clear of certain low confederates within the sports writing profession. Mr. Rice did so, wrote a masterpiece about a wild tiger man from Manassas and handed it to his telegraph operator at the ringside.

In the dead of the night, hours later, his paper called him and demanded where in blazes his story was. He tried to explain that he had filed it, but they wouldn't hear him. He came back in disgrace, had some difficulty getting back his job, and was perpetually torn by the suspicion that he might be losing his memory.

FUNNIEST STORY

Then, the following Christmas Eve, while snow swirled about the Flatbush and Toledo shivered in frigid stiffness, a telegraph key cackled in the office of the Brooklyn paper and slowly, wonderingly, the receiving operator began taking a message from Toledo. It was from Tom Rice, who now sat in the office popeyed at the ghostly miracle. It was dated July 4, and then, little by little, his entire story came over the wire. Seems it had been stuck in a pneumatic tube for six months.

"That wasn't the funniest thing happened at that fight," Mr. Rice was telling us. "Rube Goldberg was sent out there to write a gag story. He dashed it off in a hurry after the fight, thrust it into his operator's paws and hollered to him to rush it, that the paper was waiting to go to press. Well, he got a call the next day, bawling him out for not sending it. He found his operator, grabbed aholt of him and harshly demanded to know what he did with the piece."

"Don't get excited, Mr. Goldberg," the guy said. "I got it right here with me. I thought it was so funny I took it home for my wife to read."

Snow Shoes Wins Derby Feature

Backed down to the biggest favorite in the past two years and the second shortest price in the history of the track, Snow Shoes easily captured the second Derby elimination feature in the midweek meeting at Wonderland Park.

Taking the first turn third behind Fancy Jim and Hazard Laddie, the winner made her bid on the far turn, went by on the outside and won by six lengths.

She paid $3.20 to win. Outside of the $3.00 price returned on Police Court back in 1935, this payoff was the smallest in the track's history.

The next three to finish were Fancy Jim, Hazard Laddie and Madaline's Boy. All qualify for the Derby tomorrow night.

A daily double combination of Lena Lee and Uncle Judd netted 75 ticket holders $125.00. The handle for the night hit $132,151.

Kelley Is Cleared By N. E. A. A. A. U.

Johnny Kelley of Arlington, was given a clean bill by the New England A. A. U. registration board before which he was called for failure to appear in last Saturday's Caledonia track meet in Boston.

Kelley told the board he was not in fit condition to run and that failure to give notice of withdrawal, after filing an entry, was merely due to "negligence."

The board also ruled that Kelley had given proper notice of his withdrawal from the 8-mile road race up Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, scheduled for next Saturday.

Comes From Coast To See Derby

Derby Night, tomorrow, at Wonderland, Revere, will enjoy among its guests Dr. Harry Mason of Redwood City, California, who made the trap across the continent especially to see the greatest greyhound racing classic.

Dr. Mason, a native of Cambridge, who holds medical degrees from Harvard and Tufts, is a rabid West Coast racing fan.

Mrs. Mason, his wife, is one of the largest trainers of greyhounds in California, and her kennel stars are well-known throughout the Pacific Coast. The visiting surgeon will be guest at the races of Presiding Judge Jack Fisher, a Redwood City neighbor.

Eight world famous racing greyhounds will go to post in the big event Friday night. The race will be run over the Revere course of 675 yards, which is 15 yards farther than the three-eighths of a mile.

The purse will be for $1200, and the owner of the winning greyhound will be awarded the coveted Wonderland Derby Trophy. The award will be made by President "Shorty" Davis of the Old Harbor Kennel Club.

Wonderland's summer meeting comes to a close Saturday night.

The feature event on the Au Revoir card will be the Derby Consolation, involving the eight greyhounds which were eliminated in the two Derby preliminaries.

Smith Signs

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 12 (INS)—Ernie Smith, former tackle at the University of California, today signed a contract to play for his third straight year with the Green Bay Packers, professional football champions.

LOUIS Best Trained FIGHTER

USES LOGIC ON DEMPSEY

By BILL CORUM

New York, Aug. 12—It rained hard enough in Goshen yesterday to change every horse hair at the Good Time trotting track into a snake. I presume when you were young you must have taken a horse hair and put it into a bottle of water and waited for it to change into a snake.

If you didn't, you missed a lot of fun, not to mention a long wait. Because millions of boys and girls must have tried it through the years without ever getting a boa-constrictor or a diamond-back rattler for a pet. Folks have got snakes out of bottles all right, but not that way.

Nevertheless, it rained in Goshen yesterday.

So, denied a glimpse of the trotters, we drove on to Pompton Lakes, N. J., to see Joe Louis, the brown pacer from Detroit. Joe looks healthy.

He also looks to me to be the most consistently well-trained athlete I have met up with in nigh on to twenty years of sports reporting.

He weighed 203 pounds when he stepped out of the shucks and on to the scales yesterday morning. The night he fought Braddock he weighed 197¼. Does that give you an idea of the picture?

Five weeks from the night that he became heavyweight champion Louis was sleeping in his favorite bed in his favorite training camp at Pompton Lakes. Two of his five weeks of idleness were spent in a summer camp in Michigan. Does that give you a further idea?

WHATA STEAK

Now this one was a steak.

Louis, returning to his dressing room at Comiskey Field, after knocking out Braddock to win the title, snatched Jimmy Cannon by the shoulders and chortled:

"Mah troubles is ovah."

His looks and actions today convince you that those were, temporarily at least, prophetic words. He gives every appearance of being a young man without a care in all this steamy, seamy world.

If the Detroit Tigers were leading the American League, Joe Louis would be in heaven.

He's doing dandy.

When we left him at dinner time, he was tearing into a steak that would have gladdened the hearts of all the Armours and Swifts that ever lived.

LOGICAL REASONING

A natural bewilderment:

Joe had been reading in the paper where Jack Dempsey had advised Tommy Farr to fight him like Max Schmeling fought. Excellent advice from the old champ on the face of it, albeit lightly puzzling to Louis.

"I been thinking about that thing Mistah Dempsey say all day," said Joe. "Ain't that a kinda foolish kinda thing from him to say? How that man who ain't Schmeling going to fight me like Schmeling? Everbody that fight Dempsey shoulda fight him like Tunney. But everybody ain't Tunney.

"Everybody fights me like that Schmeling fight me that one time and I fights over time like I fought him, then I gonna get knocked out ever time I fights and pretty soon they ain't no Joe Louis fighting.

"If a man pitch a no-hit game one time that ain't no sign he goin' to pitch a no-hit game next time, is it? If the same man don't do the same thing ever time, how a different man goin' to do the same thing?"

This may sound slightly mixed-up in the reading, but is not without logic. Louis is quite right in pointing out that the old man mauler shouldn't talk such foolishment."

A sporting offer to Bill Terry.

The writer was surprised on his return from Goshen to find Bill Terry denying an exclusive story carried here yesterday about his latest agreement with the New York Giants.

It was, we thought, a complimentary story and certainly it was a basically true one. The point was to put the various rumors relative to Terry's future status with the New York team at rest. In all likelihood that was one of Owner Stoneham's reasons for suggesting the new contract, with its flattering terms at this time.

In denying the story, it strikes me that Terry himself pretty much let the cat out of the bag by calling it "a night club leak."

Why "leak" if there was no truth in it?

Also why specify that he had signed no paper within "the last forty-eight hours". The Evening Journal story made no mention of "forty-eight hours". Nor did it indicate when the agreement was reached, because the writer didn't know.

NEED Advertising IN SOUTH

COCA COLA GOOD EXAMPLE

By B. C. FORBES

"What the south needs most is not more yardage, but more branded, trade-marked, advertised merchandise commanding national markets and good prices."

That statement, made to me by a southern business leader, was followed up by statements that a movement is on foot among southern governors and men of affairs, especially in southeastern states, to put southern products more prominently on the map.

When you think of it, is it not true that nearly all our predominantly successful enterprises catering to the public have won their way by evolving meritorious goods trade-marking them, and then advertising them extensively?

The next time you are in a department or grocery store, look around and see how many of the things on the shelves are familiar to you by name because of intelligent, persistent advertising.

But of the things you will see, few of them emanate from the South.

It is not at all remarkable that the South's outstandingly successful concern is one that has invested most generously in advertising, namely, Cocoa Cola.

Its shares have consistently improved in market value for years. Before the distribution of three shares for one, Coca Cola stock sold as high as $298, making it one of the highest priced issues on the New York Stock Exchange. Profits last year exceeded $20,000,000. Dividend payments aggregated almost $18,000,000, an increase in the rate has just been announced.

Robert W. Woodruff, its dynamically aggressive president, told me not so long ago that his plan was to advertise even still more widely.

* * *

Broadly speaking, the South has not yet become advertising-conscious.

Whereas numbers of New England textile companies established distinctive lines of cotton products and made them favorably known to every housewife, I know of no similar instances in the South, notwithstanding that the South has far surpassed New England as the cotton textile center of America.

Thus far most southern mills have been content to turn out ordinary merchandise, much of it within low-price ranges. Surely, with greater experience and skill, they should be able henceforth to feature products of greater quality, commanding better prices.

* * *

How cotton manufacturing has swung from New England to the South is vividly pictured by these facts and figures:

Last year the South operated 73 per cent (17,857,000) of the country's total active spindles.

Southern mills for the last 18 months have been consuming 84 per cent of the cotton used in all American mills. Since 1922 the South has gained 2,640,000 spindles, while the rest of the country, chiefly New England, reported 11,438,000 few spindles.

Today the South has 19,018,496 installed spindles, contrasted with only 9,129,000 for all other American cotton mills.

The total value of the South's cotton products in the last census year, 1935, was $720,576,000—which was $92,000,000 more than the country's total production in 1910.

Rayon manufacturing and knitting mills have developed spectacularly, the 1935 statistics reveal that the South had 359 knitting establishments, which produced $147,847,000 of goods, and that the South had 70 per cent of the nation's total rayon capacity.

In other fields the South is achieving still more extraordinary records, as will be shown in a later column.

N. E. Will Harvest Bumper Potato, Apple Crops

New England will harvest bumper potato and apple crops this year.

The New England crop reporting service of the Department of Agriculture today forecast 60,942,000 bushels of "spuds" this year, compared with 54,032,000 in 1936. A Maine crop of 51,015,000 was indicated.

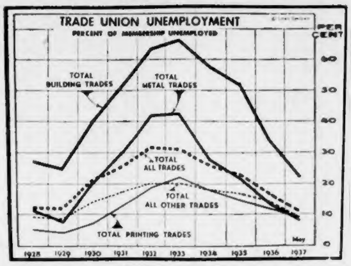
The largest apple crop since 1933, with an indicated harvest of 5,270,000 bushels, was forecast.

Young to Resign U. S. Steel Post

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Arthur H. Young, vice-president in charge of industrial relations of United States Steel Corp., will retire effective October 1 and will be succeeded by William Beye, Chicago lawyer, William A. Irvin, president, announced.

Young, a pioneer in the field of industrial relations, in which he has been active for more than 30 years, was forced by ill health to leave the corporation, Irvin said. He is 54 years old and came to U. S. Steel in 1934.

Trade Union Workers



Unemployment in trade unions during May amounted to 11 per cent of total membership, according to estimates by the Bureau of Labor. Thus, 89 per cent of all trade union members were working in May, the highest percentage in many years.

All groups of trade unions shared in the unemployment drop, from the 1933 peaks. The building group now rates the highest percentage of jobless among union members, 22 per cent, while in the metal trade the unemployed members represent 8 per cent of the trade's total union membership.

Construction Awards 10 P. C. Above 1936

New York, Aug. 12—Engineering construction awards for the week total $45,348,000. This is a 3 per cent gain over last week and 10 per cent over the 1936 week, as reported in Engineering News-Record. Private construction is 9 per cent under last week, but is 51 per cent above the 1936 week.

Public contracts constitute 69 per cent of this week's awards, and are 9 per cent above last week, but 2 per cent below 1936. This week's total is made up of private, $14,172,000; public, $31,176,000; federal, $7,288,000; state and municipal, $23,888,000.

Values for the previous week are: total, $44,041,000; private, $15,509,000; public, $28,532,000; federal, $6,749,000; state and municipal, $21,783,000, and for the corresponding week in 1936: total, $41,282,000; private, $9,377,000; public, $31,905,000; federal, $12,410,000; state and municipal, $19,495,000.

Contracts for Ruby Dam in Seattle, Washington, boosted earthwork and drainage to the highest weekly dollar volume of the year. Streets and roads, public buildings, and unclassified construction also gained over last week, but all other classifications lost.

Subtotals for the week are: waterworks, $346,000; sewerage, $1,163,000; bridges, $1,431,000; industrial buildings, $4,709,000; commercial buildings, $7,285,000; public buildings, $5,841,000; earthwork and drainage, $6,670,000; streets and roads, $13,105,000; unclassified construction, $4,798,000.

The weekly average to date for 1937, $49,838,000, is 14 per cent above that recorded at the corresponding period in 1936.

WHAT Will Farmer NET?

BUMPER CROPS MAKING MONEY

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—With a nine billion dollar agricultural income predicted for the year, analysts today were wondering how much the farmer would net from his bumper crops.

Dollars already are pouring in from the biggest wheat crop since 1931. Government crop estimates have put the cotton crop at 15,500,000 bales, the fourth largest in history. And the South sees a billion dollars jingling in its pockets as a result, in spite of the recent sharp decline in cotton prices.

But, given the combination of fair prices and high yields for his produce, the farmer finds that most of the things he plans to buy have risen in cost.

All but two of the major automobile makers have announced price rises due to increased costs of labor, materials and manufacture. Radios have gone up and many other products which have more and more worked their way into farm homes, such as washing machines, mechanical refrigerators and the like, are threatened with high costs.

True, such things as feed and perhaps the cotton clothing he wears may be lower in price. On the other hand, woolen clothing, shoes, and many of the things he buys from retail and mail order stores already have felt the effects of the costs boost.

Retailers, especially, have speculated as to the point where "consumer resistance" to higher prices will be felt in the agricultural areas. The opinion of many has been that the farmer will accept as natural fair increases arising from higher pay for labor and materials.

Sees Southwest Outlook Bright

Harvey Couch, chairman of Kansas Southern, said he had just made a trip through the Southwest, where he said the crops were excellent and he was impressed with the cheerful attitude of the people at the prospect of having plenty of money to spend.

All business in the area will benefit, he said.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

Progress In Mass. Studied

Future progress in Massachusetts will be very closely linked with the free development and use of inventions in its industries and agriculture, according to the Machinery Institute, Chicago, sponsor of a series of studies on the relation of inventions to employment and living standards.

Horsepower of equipment per capita in the state is 40 per cent above the national average, the institute found in an analysis of United States census reports. Other studies by the institute have shown that there is a close relationship between horsepower of equipment used and standard of living, both in industry and agriculture.

The United States as a whole uses 4.85 horsepower per industrial worker. Reports cited from the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland, show the amount in Germany to be 2.67, Great Britain, 2.56 and Italy, 2.14; and real wages—income expressed in purchasing power—were 160 per cent higher in the United States than in Germany, 90 per cent higher than in Great Britain, and 387 per cent higher than in Italy.

Referring to the 450,000 word report on "Technological Trends and National Policy" by the national resources committee, and proposals to set up a national planning board to regulate inventions and mechanical progress, the Institute stated:

"History has proved that society has more to gain than to lose by freedom in the development of inventions and their application. Desirable as it might be to foresee the development of an invention, experience indicates that this is impossible, to say nothing of planning for unpredictable results.

"Even the scientists themselves admit, that those who have been considered most competent to judge the future of inventions have been wrong about as often as uninformed guessers would have been. Incalculable damage would be done if society had a method of officially vetoing the 'hunches' of such men as Edison and Ford.

"The most common fallacy in connection with technological development is to assume a direct relationship between productivity of a new machine or process and employment.

"Since the beginning of the century output per worker in the iron and steel industry has increased more than 60 per cent, but instead of employment declining it has increased more than 100 per cent. There are machines enough in the American textile industry to spin more yarn and weave more cloth than could be made by all the women in the United States using the methods of Colonial housewives.

"Yet there have been more workers employed in the textile industry in recent years than ever before in history. These examples are typical of dozens which could be cited to show the tremendous increases in employment which have taken place while output per worker has increased."

Increased output per worker, the Institute states, has increased wages more than 100 per cent since 1914, and a study by the Institute of prices of 20 widely-used machine-made commodities in terms of wages showed that the 1937 consumer enjoys a 62 per cent advantage over that of 1914.

TRADING PACE SLUGGISH

New York, Aug. 12—Stocks clutched at recovery straws in today's market and selected issues held on for gains of fractions to more than a point. While light profit-selling occasionally stemmed the rallying tide, and some groups were inclined to stand still or step back a pace, improvement was general later. Volume dwindled after an active opening.

Brokers saw no marked change in the news picture, but these suggested the better business outlook may have attracted buyers to individual issues. The Congressional battle and doubts as to the law that may be pushed through before adjournment, tended to accentuate trading neutrality, analysts.

Secondary rail liens were given a lift in the bond department. Commodities were inclined to give ground.

MOTORS, STEELS UP

Motor and steel shares enjoyed a brisk play at the start. A number of oils and carriers then came to the fore and a few utilities and rubbers did better.

Pointing higher most of the time were Crucible Steel, up 3 points at the best; U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Mack Trucks, Motor Products, Standard Oils of Indiana, New Jersey and California, Texas Corporation, Socony Vacuum, Pure Oil, Tidewater Oil, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Colorado & Southern, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Eastman Kodak, Montgomery Ward, Macy, Sears Roebuck, Corn Products, Western Union, Electric Power & Light, Zenith Radio, J. I. Case, Boeing, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Electric Auto-Lite and Crown Zellerbach.

Narrow to down 2 or so were Anaconda, Kennecott, St. Joseph Lead, National Supply, Pennsylvania, Goodyear, Woolworth, International Nickel, Republic Steel and Cerro de Pasco.

RAILS RESISTANT

The more resistant rails reflected belief current wage negotiations will be concluded amicably before the end of the month, with the operating unions receiving a boost of about 7 per cent. In addition rate hoists were expected to be granted by the ICC in the near future.

Oils were relatively lively as gasoline stocks declined and demand for petroleum products showed signs of further expansion. Betterment in this industry is in the face of a new record crude output.

Anaconda and International Nickel earnings statements came up to most Wall Street forecasts but most coppers were without much support. Non-ferrous metals were lower in London and hopes of a nearby rise in the present 14-cent domestic copper rate began to wane.

TIMELY TOPICS

Holders of motors noted estimates from dealers that August sales are proceeding at a satisfactory clip. It was believed total distribution for the month will show a sizable increase over the same period last year notwithstanding the expected earlier introduction of new models and recent price advances.

That the summer slow-down hit merchandising distribution in July was indicated to market observers by the Federal Reserve Board figures showing the turnover for the month was only 4 per cent ahead of the same time in 1936, or the smallest monthly gain reported thus far in 1937.

Minor variations were registered for sterling and the French franc at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions. The former was quoted at $4.98⅛ and the latter at 3.75 5-16 cents.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—United States Smelting & Refining Co. plans to reopen its Sunnyside Mine at Eureka, Colorado, it was announced. Production will probably start within a month. The property, primarily lead and zinc, has been closed since October, 1930.

July sales of Schiff Co., retail shoe chain, climbed 13.9 per cent to $1,197,504 from $1,051,238 in July last year. Seven-month sales totaled $7,410,206, a gain of 4.2 per cent over the like 1936 period, when they totaled $7,108,339.

National Cash Register Co. reported July domestic orders dropped 2.3 per cent to $1,737,450 from $1,799,300 in July last year. Seven months' orders, however, showed an increase of 21.6 per cent to $17,912,325 from $14,733,400 in the 1936 period.

Arrangements have been completed for sale of a New York Cotton Exchange membership at $12,300, unchanged from the last previous transaction, the exchange announced.

N. E. CITY Hails Brown PLAN

CITES FURTHER PROSPERITY

Berlin, N. H., Aug. 12—Expressing approval of the Brown Company reorganization plan filed Monday with Federal Judge Peters at Portland, Me., business leaders of this city urged its acceptance by creditors and security holders.

Berlin, a city of 25,000, is almost entirely dependent for its livelihood upon the Brown mills which contribute a major portion of New England's output of wood pulp, paper and alpha cellulose, used in the rayon industry.

"The past of this city has depended upon and prospered through Brown Company operations," said Robert P. Ramsey, member of the Berlin City Council. "I believe the plan indicates further prosperity to all parties interested in the company."

W. F. Hodgdon, president of Berlin City National Bank, said:

"I favor the plan. I am convinced that the Brown family has studied this matter thoroughly and has not made any proposition to the court which cannot be carried out."

J. C. Curtis, director of the bank said:

"The plan is fair and generous to all classes of creditors. I think that with adequate working capital and larger productive capacity the value of the company's very extensive timber limits can be realized upon and the new debt structure adequately supported."

PAYING OFF DEBTS

The plan's proposal to pay off debts 100 cents on the dollar and pay all back interest on the bonds was viewed with particular satisfaction. Likewise, the proposal to undertake new financing for expansion and working capital was regarded favorably because it gave assurance of increasing operations and consequent prosperity for all New England.

Other comments, pointing out that the plan indicates the company has a promising future, that it lifts any doubt as to the stability of the company and that it foreshadows a period of prosperity for the company and the community, were made by John L. Ordway, manager of Twin State Gas & Electric Co.; E. O. Gilbert, manager, Albert Theater Co.; W. F. Costello, hotel proprietor, and N. R. La Rochelle, druggist.

Copies of the plan have been mailed to all security holders and general creditors. Enclosed with the plan was a letter asking its approval together with forms for indicating such approval and acceptance.

U. S. Gypsum

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP)—Directors of the United States Gypsum Company voted regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents on the common and $1.75 on the preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 15.

Comments of Brokers

Yesterday's performance in stocks provided no new evidence as to which way the list will move out of its prolonged stalemate. While it is my feeling that a trading setback is somewhat more likely than an immediate uprush, it is still possible that the depressed railroad section might come forward and help sentiment.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

Looking ahead it is extremely doubtful that the market as a whole will stay in its recent narrow rut much longer. In the writer's opinion, the chances are quite good that the next move will be upward and will be accompanied by a broadening of interest.—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Co.

With the rails continuing to display a firm undertone, and the industrials still hovering within a fraction of the upper limits of the trading range within which they have been confined for over two weeks, the situation remains favorable for an early termination of the current period of irregularity and hesitation and a decisive resumption of the uptrend on a broad and active scale and probably without much advance notice.—J. E. Mollow, Hornblower & Weeks.

Little change in the character of the market is to be expected for the next few weeks. Seasonal vacation influences will exaggerate the effect of other influences to dullness, while the promising trade picture should keep off any liquidation of importance.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

It remains our impression that the fall trade and industrial outlook remains sufficiently cheerful to warrant the maintenance of a generally constructive market attitude.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Far West Business Outlook

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)

New York, Aug. 12—Business men in the Far West in their thinking are turning from man-made troubles, such as strikes, to favorable intervention by Providence in the form of bountiful crops, according to Harry W. Sack, San Francisco economic analyst and partner of Strassburger & Co.

Giving a pen picture of conditions and prospects on the Pacific coast, Mr. Sack, in a statement to this writer, declared:

"Business men on the Pacific coast have proceeded with tensive caution during recent months.

Much effort has been spent defending against man-made disturbances and adjustment by industry to resultant higher costs. With some simmering down of labor warfare indicated, attention is now turning to expected business stimulus in the form of bountiful agricultural crops to be marketed at higher prices than have been received for some years.

"Labor has dominated the trend here for some months, although its effects probably have been felt less than in more industrialized sections. The economy of the Pacific slope, while highly diversified, revolves about agriculture, a field which has had its share of trouble but has not yet proved amenable to extensive labor organization or strife.

"Thus, while we have just settled a major strike in the hotel business in San Francisco and suffered strike threats in the department and retail stores, the building, food canning and other industries, we have not had a widespread major tieup since last year's maritime strike. This contrasts with more destructive labor stoppages in concentrated industrial centers of the east and middle west.

"It does not mean, however, that our business level has not been lowered materially by strikes. Depressing effects of San Francisco's three months' hotel tieup were best illustrated by the immediate sharp increase in tourist arrivals as soon as the hostelries reopened.

"All fields which are affected by the heavy tourist expenditures at this time of year saw almost overnight resumption of peak business. Federal reserve compilations show that retail department store sales declined in June to a level with June, 1936. Bank debits were only 2 per cent above last year.

"Illustrating the extent of the rise in business costs, one California source estimates June payrolls jumped 19 per cent above 1936, average weekly earnings rose 14 per cent, while total employment was up less than 3 per cent."

As a further measure of the decline of business since last December, Mr. Sack pointed out:

"Our weekly business index after rebounding from effects of last year's late maritime stalemate, to a new high above 1930 'normal' in mid-December, tapered off gradually as 1937 progressed. Betterment began from an April level about 10 per cent below the peak. The activity level is now about 99 per cent and tending gradually upward."

Reviewing the business situation, the California economist added:

"Higher costs, attributed in large part to larger wages and shorter hours for labor have made for a disappointing showing in building activity in this area in recent months. An incipient building boom inaugurated in 1935 has failed thus far to carry through. The June decline in California building permits from May amounted to 5 per cent. Non-residential building particularly has contracted, the public works contracts show but a slight increase over a year ago."

Giving the details of the crop situation, Mr. Sack revealed:

"An estimated gain over last year of from 20 to 25 per cent in income from farm products, fruit crops and livestock, should do much, however, to ease consumer adjustment to generally higher costs. Railroad car loadings will continue to increase during the harvesting season, now getting into swing.

"Retail trade and money turnover should improve materially. Shipping is even now enjoying a high rate of activity. Production from mines and forests has continued at a highly prosperous rate, with a veritable boom under way in the wood pulp industry.

"Worry over the citrus crop, largest in value of all California produce, following the severe freeze of last winter has been dispelled by a materially higher price received for oranges and lemons. Growers are selling oranges at $2.80 per box against $2.00 a year ago and $1.30 in 1935, while lemons bring $4.70 per box against $3.95 and $1.20 in the previous two years."

As for oil, the financier said:

"The outlook is exceptionally bright in California's two billion dollar oil industry. Gasoline consumption is the highest in history by a considerable margin and over $10,000,000 will be spent this year in increasing and modernizing refinery equipment to produce better gasoline more efficiently."

X-RAY

Examination and consultation absolutely FREE to all who call before August 18th. The X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease, Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

NERVE EXHAUSTION

Mrs. Sarah Bates, 6 Worcester St., Cambridge, Mass., says: "I had been feeling bad for three months. I had lost my baby and I was nervous, tired and really exhausted. I took the advice of my sister, Mrs. Phillips, who said Dr. Walsh had helped her so much that she was sure Dr. Walsh could help me. Dr. Walsh did help me wonderfully. I feel good now, thanks to Dr. Walsh, and I have taken my mother to him for treatment. I am giving this testimonial in the hope my experience will lead others who suffer from chronic disease to Dr. Walsh and a cure for their troubles." Signed, Sarah Bates.

61 Employment for Men

SALESMEN

The oldest company of its kind in America has a vacancy for an aggressive, mentally alert salesman who can create business.

This position is not a push-over, but an honest-to-goodness sales opening, selling a line of advertising which has stood the test of time and a line a man takes keen joy and pride in representing.

Our salesmen are permanent, many of them being with us for over 15 years and every branch office we operate in principal cities is headed by a former salesman who has won his position solely through ability.

In our business every man is a prospect and an enormous amount of repeat business assures a man of a steadily increasing income.

If your mind is set on the fact that success comes solely through work and you are willing to put forth the effort for that success, come in and have a preliminary talk without obligation.

You have to sell yourself for this opening; it does not require any high-pressure selling to [illegible].

Call at Room 401, 116 Bedford St., Boston, or phone for appointment, Liberty 1510.

Save Your Home!

CONTENDING that the rapid increase in foreclosures of Home Owners Loan Corporation mortgages is depriving thousands of Americans of their homes, at a loss to the government, Congressman Henry Ellenbogen of Pennsylvania has proposed legislation to remedy this deplorable situation.

His measure would reduce the present interest rate of 5 and 6 per cent on HOLC mortgages to 3½ per cent, and spread the time of paying installments of principal and interest from 10 and 15 years to 25 years.

Under such terms the home owner's monthly payments would be cut from $7.92 per every thousand dollars of his mortgage to $5.01.

This, he points out, would make them easier to bear, and the interest rate reduction would still leave a margin of nearly 1 per cent to the HOLC, which pays on its bonds an average interest rate of only 2.6 per cent.

The HOLC was created for the benefit of Americans of moderate means desiring to acquire their own homes through government aid to that end.

If these people enter into the plan only to LOSE their homes through mortgage foreclosures, the HOLC FAILS OF ITS PURPOSE.

STATISTICS show, according to Congressman Ellenbogen, that on March 31, last, these foreclosures totaled 74,385 and by June 30 had risen to 104,547, amounting to more than 395 MILLION DOLLARS.

At a recent congressional committee hearing, the Home Loan Bank Board estimated that at the end of the current fiscal year HOLC foreclosures would reach 20 PER CENT OF THE LOANS GRANTED, TOTALING 600 MILLION DOLLARS.

That these foreclosures, while divesting many thousands of their homes, do NOT help the finances of the HOLC is borne out by the fact that of 48,502 units of which actual possession had been taken as of May 31, last, ONLY 26,311 UNITS WERE RENTED.

Thus more than 45 per cent of the homes taken over by foreclosure remained vacant, WITHOUT INCOME TO THE HOLC, and became a burden through necessary expenditures for taxes, insurance and maintenance.

IN view of these facts, Congressman Ellenbogen logically contends that solution of the problem lies in making the TERMS of the HOLC mortgages EASIER, so that the home owner can PAY his obligation and KEEP HIS HOME.

Home ownership would thus be preserved and losses to the government avoided.

The Ellenbogen Bill should be given A PROMPT HEARING BY THE CONGRESS TO DETERMINE ITS MERITS.

It has been buried in the Committee on Banking and Currency, to which it was referred, and a resolution making it a special order of business was referred to the Committee on Rules.

There is a petition, now on the Speaker's desk, which, if signed by 218 members of the House, will discharge these committees from further consideration of the measure and PLACE IT DIRECTLY BEFORE THE HOUSE.

Send word to your congressman by air-mail today to SIGN DISCHARGE PETITION NO. 29, for a hearing in the interest of these American home owners.

The Indian Kept His Word

TODAY is "Indian Day" in Massachusetts.

On this occasion, set apart by the Legislature and duly proclaimed by the Governor, the Commonwealth pays official honor to the Red Men, original Americans.

The celebration remembers especially Massasoit, that great-hearted and honor-loving chief, who proved a friend to the white settlers, entered into a treaty with them, AND LIVED UP TO ITS TERMS FOR FIFTY YEARS.

"Indian Day" ought to be more than a local event. The nation should unite in the observance, the world also. Many countries could learn a valuable lesson from Chief Massasoit and his tribesmen.

For, accustomed as we are to regard the American Indian as a savage, we must face the fact that he could and did keep his word. That's more than most of the supposedly civilized European governments are able to do.

She Defies the 13th Jinx

HOW deeply rooted is superstition? Very deeply. This is the right answer, if the talk and terrors inspired by Belmont's approaching "Friday, the 13th" wedding are a barometer of public sentiment.

Nonetheless, the number "13," proverbial ill-luck omen, holds no fears for Miss Lucy Elizabeth Hodder, the bride-to-be. In fact, she goes out of her way to make the mystic figure play a prominent part in her marriage.

She lives at 13 Sycamore street, Belmont; wears a ring with 13 diamonds; sets the ceremony time at 5:13; chooses a bouquet with 13 flowers; invites 13 guests, and plans to stay on Floor 13 of a New York hotel.

Perhaps, from this confusion of jinxes, Miss Hodder and her fiance will emerge a reasonably happy couple. Let's hope they will. Otherwise, even the winds may be expected to howl, "I told you so."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 12—Better than anyone I've ever known or heard about, Carolyn Wells has mastered the Art of Living Alone. Three years ago she sang her swan song in "Two Years to Live," a decree of doctors, which didn't jell. Indeed she is going stronger than ever.

O. O. McIntyre

Miss Wells is perfectly described by the overworked word, "Dynamic." She sleeps a scant four hours and is always on edge to go places or join in a farandole. Never in her exciting career has she known a lonely moment. Relaxation is not in her lexicon.

Every moment of her time is occupied and her powers of self amusement are prodigious. Four books a year is her self-imposed literary stint, aside from turning out a number of magazine articles. She plays a crack game of bridge and is a shark at acrostics.

For five years she has read every new book of importance. She is always cheerful and ready to jest with those she likes. And there's always something in the refrigerator for callers. No one ever knocked the blight of almost total deafness sky high with greater grace.

One of the big literary stunt fizzles was the recent round-the-island journey by train of the Wednesday Culture Club that meets on Friday. The idea was for a three hours trip skirting the most depressing vistas of New York.

One might think such a collection of intellectuals would have had a field day for wit. But nobody visited, laughed, sung or even gadded. Instead, everyone sat in place as if bound for Chicago. The Addison Mizner of this decade, Lucius Beebe, did not smile once.

One wonders what pet cutups of yesteryear would have done. Stuffy Davis, for instance. Or Ashton Stevens in his San Francisco mood? Or Booth Tarkington in his salad days?

To my notion, if you take Atlantic City, sterilize, manicure, give it a fresh bath, hair bob and redden its nails, you have Jones Beach. Of all the denatured, prophylactic, air conditioned resorts it's the sanitary acme. Why so austere and unhuman, like a Greek statue? Why does that solemn row of wire trash baskets along the beach affect one so sadly?

You cannot buy a newspaper. They are taken from your hand as you enter. They think only angels should bathe, play paddle tennis and archery.

One misses that pleasant human vulgarity of common instincts. You feel a single shooting gallery might give it a soul. It is too much like looking backwards. Altruria, Utopia or the mythical perfection of some Socialistic paradise.

The only natural thing is the ocean. All artificial as Coney, in the opposite direction, plus the vague discomforts and boredom of a Fundamentalist's Heaven. Or is it just one of my sour days?

Covering up note: Fortune tellers, called Astrologers, who predicted the Duke of Windsor wouldn't marry Wallis, because the stars forbade, are now crawling with the amendment the marriage will not last a year. And a lot of people swallow it whole.

The famed Sulka haberdashery again joins the northward sweep. It first opened on 34th next to the old Waldorf and when it moved on the avenue to 43d many believed it had gotten out of the shopping zone. Now it has moved further northward on the avenue between 52d and 53d.

Sulka himself has retired and Bert Thompson, long in charge of the Paris botique, is in command.

Thingumbobs: Al Jolson expects to make a half million out of his black fighter, Armstrong . . . Young Doug Fairbanks has a valet named Jeeves . . . Bennie Leonard spen $80,000 flossing up his West 72d street cafe.

Ballad of a defeated neckticist:
I think it would be simply grand,
To navigate a four in hand.
I mean to put it on first time
So that the ends exactly rhyme.

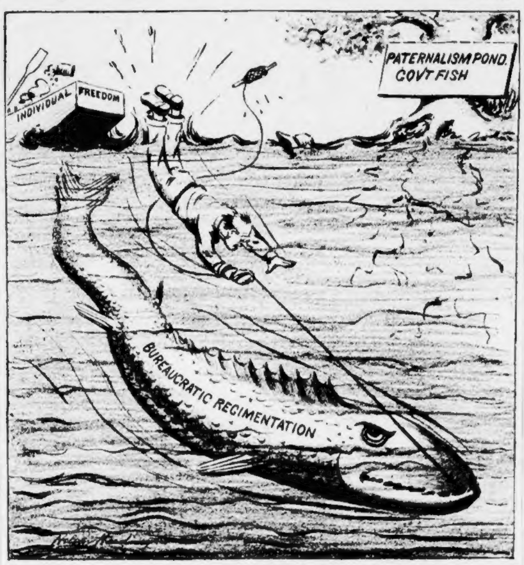
Isn't It So?

Sometimes the man who sends the bride the handsomest wedding present is the old flame who "got away"—and wants to show his gratitude.

A girl has no trouble in discovering that a man wants to marry her. The delay in the wedding is usually caused by the months and months it takes her to make HIM discover it.

Dangerous Waters

By Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

What a lot of unhappiness we'd save ourselves if we would cut out the posing and fibbing and face a few frank facts about family life.

Elsie Robinson

There isn't a doubt that domestic difficulties cause more misery than all other social problems put together. If any business on earth tried to run on such lop-sided theories as motivate most homes it would be bankrupt within a week.

Trouble is our notions of family life are all wrong from the start. From the time we can toddle, we are taught that members of a family "just naturally" love and understand each other. Those rare creatures who don't are simply abnormal monsters.

As a consequence, we enter life chockful of romantic expectations—and forthwith face one shocking surprise after another.

Take your own case. You were prepared to find strangers tiresome and difficult, even treacherous. But family life, you were assured, would compensate for all this, would heal all wounds, dry all tears. Well, here you are—and what do you see?

SOMETHING WRONG?

Strangers are, for the most part, surprisingly pleasing and agreeable, even highly congenial.

But where, oh where, is all this spontaneous devotion, instinctive understanding and unswerving loyalty you had been led to expect from your kin?

Some, it is true, fill the bill. But others seem utterly indifferent to you, if not downright hostile. Why look at the way they criticize every little thing you do . . . meddled in your affairs . . . take advantage of your good nature! Is that any way for a family to act to one of its own members?

Or perhaps it's your fault, not theirs. You get along swell with John, but—though you'd die rather than admit it—Ed does bore you and Ellen gets your goat, and you're darned if you know what Alice is all about.

As for your father and mother—well, maybe they are all right in their way, but they certainly aren't YOUR idea of what a mother and father should be!

YOUR OWN FAULT

But this shouldn't be, you say to yourself. Imagine not liking one's own sisters and brothers . . . not admiring one's own father and mother! There must be something horribly wrong somewhere! Something lacking, perhaps, in yourself.

But there isn't! Families are like that. The only thing that's amiss . . . the thing responsible for all domestic misery and misunderstanding . . . is our absurd conception of family life. No group of normal mortals could possibly live up to that conception.

THERE IS NO REASON ON EARTH WHY WE SHOULD LOVE, UNDERSTAND OR ADMIRE ALL OUR RELATIONS OR WHY THEY SHOULD LOVE, UNDERSTAND OR ADMIRE US IN RETURN.

Relatives are individuals before they are relations . . . individuals with different ideas and ideals. There's no harm in that. You work daily with people who are "all different"—people whose opinions do not agree with yours, who do not always understand you, who sometimes bore and irritate you.

Yet you get along finely because you EXPECT and ACCEPT those differences and ADAPT yourself to them, cheerfully and sensibly. Under such conditions, your very differences make your associations more interesting and stimulating.

But when it comes to your blood kin you ignore these natural facts, disregard these fundamental rights, and try to force them all to fit into an impossible, fairy-tale pattern of conduct. And it won't work. Of course, it won't.

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS A FEW GOOD MANNERS IN THE HOME.

Marry —Go— Round

By Helen Rowland

It is sheer waste of time for a man to spend weeks assuring a girl that she appeals to his mind—only to lose out to the first casual Lothario who spends five minutes telling her that she "goes to his head."

A man's little weaknesses make his wife feel sorry for him; a wife's little weaknesses make a man feel sorry for himself.

If the average man would exercise as much ingenuity and enthusiasm in putting the flavor and piquancy into marriage as he does in putting the kick into a cocktail, good old wedlock would be a lot more stimulating and far less humdrum.

World unrest is nothing new. It all started back in the Garden of Eden when the first woman handed the first man something to eat that disagreed with him and made him want to fight, without knowing why.

Many a husband is so uncommunicative about his business affairs that when he dies all his wife knows about him is that he was a good provider, liked his eggs cooked three minutes, and voted the straight party ticket. His lawyers have to tell her the rest.

A woman gets the same pleasure out of window-shopping that a man derives from looking over the pretty girls on the beach; but no married pair ever succeeded in convincing each other that such "sight-seeing tours" were purely academic.

Somehow, the simple fact that a woman married him seems to be positive proof to a man that she couldn't possibly be interested in any other man; whereas, the fact that a man married her, seems to make a wife suspect that every other woman is interested in him.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Biggest of all rackets is government. And the slickest rackets, it seems, are those devised to shake down business men when the hat is passed for campaign fund donations.

Apparently, the practice of demanding a direct contribution has been abandoned as too crude. The modern method is to "sell" a book of some kind to those who are on the party's "sucker list." These campaign fund collectors are crackerjack salesmen, too.

When they are allowed to retain as their commissions one-half of what they take in, that is inducement enough to bring the best of the high pressure lads to the aid of the party in gathering in the golden sheaves.

The story told Senate investigators by Robert R. Young, New York railroad magnate, regarding his "purchase" of Democratic National Convention books was an eye-opener.

According to his testimony, he bought 150 of these books, paying $15,000 for them. He told the Senate investigators he was "just as indignant as you are" to learn that the solicitors kept half of what he paid, and said:

"My understanding was that the books cost only about $20 and that the rest of the $15,000 would go to the party."

Press dispatches quote Young as saying he "would much rather have given $7500 directly to the Democratic National Committee." One may wonder why he didn't do that.

Why should any business man who is smart enough to have $15,000 to spare pay out that money for $20 worth of books?

Why conceal a campaign donation as a purchase of books?

And why should campaign fund solicitors masquerade as book salesmen?

Any American citizen certainly has a right to make a campaign fund contribution if he wants to. If it is wrong for him to make a donation openly and directly, it certainly is worse to make that donation indirectly and in the guise of a purchase of books.

Concealment of campaign fund contributions is one thing that should not be tolerated.

According to Executive Secretary Hayden, the Democratic National Congressional Committee plans publication of a "Democratic Register." Although he says no profits are expected to be realized a letter sent to prospective advertisers states:

"We cannot hope to obtain our campaign fund from special interests and must rely upon some such plan as this to supplement aid we had hoped to obtain from another source. Every dollar of the net proceeds derived from the publication of 'The Register' goes into the fund and is utilized for no other purpose."

But if no profits are anticipated, why tell prospective advertisers that all profits are going into the campaign funds? Any private concern would have a hard time getting by with such a scheme.

Under a new commercial agreement announced by President Roosevelt, Russia agrees to purchase at least 40 million dollars of American products during the next year, and the United States grants to the Soviet Government all the tariff concessions, commercial privileges and advantages given other nations.

The Russians must be convinced this deal is to their advantage or they wouldn't enter into it.

If it is good for them, that does not necessarily mean it will be beneficial for us.

We have come out second best in most of these commercial agreements.

A strange situation exists in this country. An employer cannot fire an employe for belonging to a union. Such an act would be a violation of the law. But an employer can fire a man for not belonging to the union. And that is NOT a violation of the law.

The employer can make a closed shop contract and then his non-union employes must join the union or they lose their jobs.

The Ancient Vikings

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Down at Newport during bright August days, thousands surge out to sea in every kind and style of craft, from the huge, seagoing yachts of the millionaires to the dinghy with a kicker at the stern.

Edwin C. Hill

A moving panorama of color and excitement, brought into transient being by the America's Cup races between the American defender, Ranger, and the English challenger, Endeavor the Second.

But I, for one, would rather have been somewhere out on that sunlit wind-ripped sea off Newport on a far more dramatic occasion—the day when the first shipload of white men sighted the American shore and when the feet of white men first trod American soil.

It was a long time ago—nearly a thousand years ago; in fact, just 938 years ago. For it was that day in the year 999 that Leif Ericson, son of that stormy soul, Eric the Red, steered his dragon ship into Newport Harbor.

It was Leif, Eric's son, who dared the dark mysteries of the western ocean, drawn by the spirit of high adventure, who ran before the wind until he came to a fair country, with great trees and all purple with wild grapes and over-running with game.

BURIED PROOF

And this, I say, was in the year 999, centuries before the Genoese sailor, Columbus, with his three little ships set out for the Indies and came to land on the little Isle of San Salvador in the Caribbean.

Out in Kensington, Minnesota, not long ago, the noted historian, Hjalmar Holand, came upon a slab of long buried, dark-colored rock.

And upon that slab, carved in the runic characters used by those great sea-rovers, the ancient Vikings, was a strange inscription which goes to prove that the Vikings sailed across the Atlantic and got as far west as Minnesota away back in the Fourteenth Century.

Thirty adventurers, according to the runic carving, had thrust westward from Vineland which, presumably, was where Rhode Island is now, and the inscription tells the story of the massacre of 10 of the party by Indians in 1362.

In Norwegian literature, Mr. Holand found the record of an expedition which was actually sent to American waters by the Vikings in 1355, and of the return of part of the expedition in 1364.

The belief is that the Viking party sailed north from Vineland and into Hudson's Bay, thence into the Nelson River and then made their way by canoe and on foot to the spot where they left the extraordinary record of their mission and their tragedy—certainly, one of the most heroic feats of all time.

A STRONG RACE

They were a great people, those sturdy old Norsemen—stalwart men and women to whom conquest was the very breath of life.

It was two centuries before Christ that these blond giants turned up on the Scandinavian Peninsula and went on to master sea and land. Out into the huge, empty, unknown ocean they sailed their little galleys, with no compasses, no instruments of any sort upon which modern navigators depend.

Their only friends were the sun, the moon, and the stars, this great people, whose whole story is a tale of splendour and wild freedom.

And then the Vikings withered and faded, and all that they ever found, except Iceland, became for centuries only a memory.

But the Viking blood was not lost, for it made a Norman France and a Norman England. Because of that blood, East, West, North and South were electrical with premonitions of continents-to-be whose looming shapes were the stuff of dreams—till dreams, daringly followed, became even more amazing actuality.

For that vital blood all the perilous edges of the world were invested with strangeness and mystery and romance.

On the Nail

To understand history properly we should study the peculiar CHARACTERS of peoples. It is CHARACTER that creates, decides and colors historical events and not vice versa. For instance, the United States is exactly the country it is because the CHARACTER of our people can be summed up in one word—INDEPENDENCE. Soviet, or Czaristic Russia, cannot be different from what it is and has been because the Russian knows only one word—SUBMISSION.

To understand what is going on in Spain today it is necessary to know the CHARACTER of the SPANIARD. That character has two dominant elements—Romanticism and Fanaticism.

It will make very little difference to this nation of romantic and fanatical Conquistadores whether Communism or Fascism triumphs. In either case, the Spaniard will remain that which he has always been—a slave of ABSOLUTISM.

The Spaniard, in whatever camp, understands perfectly the meaning of the words Caesar, Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini.

But there is one name completely foreign to the Spanish understanding and character—THOMAS JEFFERSON.

And that is the reason why there never was, and probably never will be, such a thing as a DEMOCRATIC SPAIN.

Mankind has an incurable passion "to tell it to posterity." It is the unquenchable instinct for immortality.

Gutzon Borglum, who is sculpturing on Rushmore Mountain, South Dakota, the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, says that, allowing for the usual erosion of the elements, these memorials of America ought to last SEVERAL BILLION YEARS. That, I think, is just a little too much "immortality."

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, of Oglethorpe University, is storing away in the Appalachian Mountains in a "stainless steel receptacle" film records of what life is today, to be opened in 8113—nearly SEVEN THOUSAND YEARS from now. Among the records to be stored is "A STAR IS BORN," with alluring Janet Gaynor and handsome Fredric March. That is still playing a very long shot.

Harvard got nearer to earth when the faculty stored away newspapers to be opened in 2037.

Time, which eats up all things, is playing a stiff game with man's dreams. And the admirable thing about this game is that MAN HAS NOT YET GOT COLD FEET.

The Indians of the Rio Grande are gathering for their annual corn dance. This dance is one of the most ancient of human rituals. It is celebrated by EVERY PEOPLE IN THE WORLD. The Greeks named Adonis, the handsomest of the gods, the Father of Corn.

Many Indian tribes of North America believe that the old woman who never dies is the patron saint of corn and other cereals. This old woman who never dies is, of course, Old Mother Earth herself.

The instinct of creating an imaginary person to represent those things we love and hate is as much alive today as it was among primitive people. We call America Uncle Sam, England John Bull and France Marianne.

When war breaks out we say that "MARS IS ON THE MARCH" and when peace comes we say "THE DOVE OF PEACE HAS COME BACK TO US."

This incurable wish to give all things a name and to make super-beings rule over the humblest and greatest things comes from the deepest, oldest and profoundest belief of human beings—a belief that THE UNIVERSE IS A LIVING BEING.

The squabble over Freddie Bartholomew's salary is unfortunate because there is probably no more beloved screen figure in the world today than this charming boy who looks exactly as Hamlet must have looked when he was 13 years of age.

The boy's face, which can register in an extraordinary manner for his age—AND REGISTER NATURALLY—pathos, fear, joy and dreamy aspiration, is prematurely intellectual. It is a face that the hands of a Raphael would simply itch to sculp.

Bartholomew is already a superb actor, as those who have seen him in "Lloyds of London," "The Devil Is a Sissy," and, above all, "Captains Courageous" will agree to.

It is part of the magic of our times to know that probably two hundred million persons throughout the world are interested in the future of this talented lad.
